Embankment

CAMDEN, N. J., April 9.—Three persons are dead and more than a score were in hospitals today as a result of the wreck of a Pennsylvania train at Morris Junction. A split rail caused train, which was known as the "Nellie Blie" and was made up entirely of club cars and Pullmans, to leave the track, according to railway officials today.

The first car rolled down a ten foot embankment and landed bottom side up.

The engineer and fireman were pinned in the locomotive cab and scalded by escaping steam.

They died in a hospital here.

Nearly all the twenty-five passengers in the first car were seriously injured.

KILLED BY FALL FROM HOTEL WINDOW

CHICAGO, Apr. 9.—Leo J. Ainsworth, president of the Ainsworth Radio Co., was killed instantly today when he fell from the nineteenth floor of a burning hotel building here. As Ainsworth, his hands burned, clung to a window ledge, 300 feet above the street, three persons, one of them a woman, were forming a human chain in an effort to rescue him. Before they could reach the man, however, his grasp broke and he plunged to the pavement.

The fire originated in Ainsworth's room. Police believe he fell asleep while smoking a cigarette, the flag igniting the bed-dress.

The Ainsworth family resides in Cleveland.

WILL PROBE DEATH OF KENYON TEACHER

MOUNT VERNON, O., April 9.—Not satisfied with the explanation of circumstances surrounding the death of Professor Walter Denston, assistant instructor in mathematics at Kenyon College authorities today began an investigation which they hope will clear up the mystery.

Professor Denston died last night from a gun shot wound supposedly inflicted accidentally by himself. The instructor was found in a woodland Wednesday night, after his wife notified authorities he was missing.

Earlier in the day Denston obtained his rifle and told his wife he was going out to shoot at a target. He was a native of England and federal officials have begun an investigation of his citizenship.

FRANCE AND SPAIN WILL SUE FOR PEACE

PARIS, April 9.—A peace conference to end the Franco-Spanish war against Abd El Krim's Riffians and allied tribes in Morocco is expected to begin within ten days and peace would be established within a month, it was announced today.

The Franco-Spanish plenipotentiaries will meet the enemy negotiators at Oudja, North Africa. Meanwhile French military activity in Morocco will continue, but it is unlikely that there will be a major offensive.

The French war office believes two weeks will suffice for the negotiations as the principal points have been decided.

The foreign office today announced today that Krim had accepted the general conditions of the peace.

WEATHER BUREAU FOR YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 9.—(UP)—Establishment of a United States Weather Bureau in Youngstown is believed near as the result of negotiations now under way between the government and officials of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

The government's plan, as outlined in recent conferences between weather bureau and company officials, is to use equipment now in the field engineer's office in private weather observation work.

Instruments and records would be invaluable to the government should the bureau be established, company authorities believe.

In the Battle of Wets and Drys

Here are three leaders in the prohibition fight which is now being waged before a committee of the U. S. Senate. Left to right they are: Senator Reed, of Missouri, spokesman for the wets; Senator Means, of Colorado, chairman of the committee, and Senator Walsh, of Montana, a "dry."

GOVERNMENT TAKEN SERIOUSLY BY NONE SAYS BISHOP BROWN

Congress Is Joke Heretic
Informs Labor
Meeting

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—"The government is suffering from senile dementia and is not taken seriously by any one," in the opinion of William Montgomery Brown of Galion, Ohio, deposed heretic Bishop of the Episcopal Church. "Labor is climbing into the saddle of world affairs and the government and church are breaking down," declared Bishop Brown, addressing the International Labor defense organization here last night. "The government used to be a bulwark of capitalism. Now it is the bulwark of nothing at all. Congress is a joke, the state legislatures are jokes and we are living under prohibition agents, not prohibition."

The deposed bishop said that after the war "congress set out to do something silly and succeeded. It could not abolish war or poverty, so it abolished beer," he said, adding that "the country has been in the hands of bootleggers ever since."

"Do not assume that I am attacking prohibition," he declared. "I never have seen any prohibition. Bishop Brown then reverted to a discussion of Heaven, declaring the church backs people to do something impossible theory that nobody can know anything about."

"If you happen to want a real Heaven instead of an imaginary one, you are a heretic," he said.

COLLEGE STUDENTS ARE NOT JAZZ-WILD

GRANVILLE, O., April 9.—That the young men and women of our colleges are not all the jazz-wild gin-drinking, and frivolity type that the novelists of the "Plastic Age" school are apt to portray is clearly evidenced by a self-imposed rule that the student government association of Denison University recently passed.

The rule, which makes a strict interpretation of honor, affects eligibility to hold student offices in the university. It provides that no one guilty of "cribbing" or cheating in any manner, shall be eligible for even a minor office under the student government, and is just one of the many manifestations of the high regard for honor in the school.

The student government association conducts an honor court, and its punishments range from a failure in the course in which the misdemeanor occurred, to dismissal from school.

FRENCH MINISTER OF INTERIOR QUILTS

PARIS, April 9.—The cabinet today accepted the resignation of Louis Malvy, minister of interior, Jean Durand, minister of agriculture was named by Premier Briand to succeed Malvy.

Malvy's presence in the Briand ministry formed following the defeat of the Briand government on March 6, aroused tremendous opposition among Right deputies who charged he had never been cleared of war-time charges of treason for which he was once exiled.

During a debate in the chamber following the League of Nations meeting at Geneva, a scorching attack was launched at Malvy. He sought to reply but could hardly speak for emotion. A few minutes later, he collapsed, and he had not appeared in the chamber since.

LOWERING SKIES AGAIN BRING PROMISE OF HEAVY RAIN FALL

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—Lowering skies again today brought new threats of heavy seasonal rains, but no immediate flood damage was feared.

After pouring from the heavens incessantly for forty-eight hours, the rains of Thursday gave way to clear skies and it was believed any flood danger had been passed.

Dense cloud banks swirled over many sections of the state today, however, and according to the general weather forecast, tons of moisture may be poured into the already swelling streams tonight. Rivers and creeks throughout the state were still on the rampage today but none, with the exception of a few creeks and one river, advanced far beyond the lowlands.

In the Bowling Green area conditions were considered grave. The Dixie highway was under eighteen inches of water and motorists were making a three mile detour around the road.

The Portage river burst its banks and flooded the farm lands on the river bottoms but no serious damage was reported.

YOUTH IS KILLED

LANCASTER, O., April 9.—Wesley Seymour, 17, son of Pearl Seymour, of Lancaster, was killed today by a northbound Hocking Valley train near Hooker's Station, five miles north of here. The youth was standing on the tracks with his brother Pearl, 23, when the train rounded a curve, Pearl leaped to safety but Wesley, apparently transpired by the approaching train was knocked beneath the wheels and mangled. The boys were en route to Hooker's Station to seek work.

FALLS TO DEATH

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—Rudyard Tucker, a structural steel worker, was killed today when he fell fifteen stories while working on the new forty-eight story American Insurance Union skyscraper here.

Rudyard was working on the 35th floor when he lost his balance and plunged to the 20th floor.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON LIED AND DRANK TO FORWARD PROHIBITION

NEW YORK, April 9.—William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson tells the story of his part in the campaign which led to the passage of prohibition in a copyrighted article in the May issue of Hearst's International Cosmopolitan Magazine released today.

In his article Johnson says: "I have told enough lies for the cause to make Ananias ashamed of himself."

That on one occasion he bribed Russian officials to give him secret information, which would aid his work.

"That he has drunk 'gallons of it' in his campaign against liquor," he denied stories which have been told that he had even taken human life in his campaigning and told the source of those stories.

"I like the taste of liquor," Johnson wrote, "but I have never drunk it except for the reasons (gathering evidence in criminal cases) indicated above."

"I have not had a drink in a dozen years. And yet I would take a drink right now if I thought that it would advance the prohibition cause."

Johnson specifies he is "not engaged in the task of defending either my own conduct or that of the Anti-Saloon League."

"In the abstract," he says, "much could not with ease be justified ethically."

"One of the most difficult lessons for the drys to learn," Johnson writes, discussing the political phases of Prohibition, "was that a man's personal habits as to drink did not necessarily affect his availability as a candidate for public office."

"Many of our most loyal supporters in and out of public office, were men who occasionally took a drink and some of them took it more than occasionally."

He characterized the "West Virginia statehood fight, in 1912" as the turning point of the prohibition struggle. He charged the wets had arranged to pay newspapers in West Virginia, large amounts to publish their propaganda as editorial or reading matter.

Johnson wrote letters to the newspapers asking their rates of "poor news matter" and for "editorials" against prohibition "to be written by myself."

ARGUMENT IS FATAL MEDINA, O., April 9.—A dispute over "who could shoot the straightest" resulted in the death here of Ernest Leiblin, 42, and the arrest of Dennis Van, 35, who has been charged with Leiblin's murder. Van, in recounting how Leiblin was shot to death, said they argued over who was the best shot, the dispute finally becoming so heated that he shot Leiblin through the heart.

AMERICAN MERCURY EDITOR AND AUTHOR ANSWER HOME FOLKS

Small Town Charity,
Said

NEW YORK, April 9.—H. L. Mercury and Herbert Asbury, author of the article "Hatrack," which has led to a belated postoffice order barring the April issue from the mails, although the mailing was completed two weeks ago, today prepared statements for the United Press relative to the wave of protest engulfing Asbury's hometown—Farmington, Mo.

Yesterday the folks of Farmington adopted resolutions against the magazine and promised to take the matter before the next national conference of the Methodist Church. It was in Farmington that "Hatrack," a woman of considerably doubtful virtue, is said to have lived, and United Press dispatches quoted the citizens as declaring she was now residing in an adjacent town, after having married a second time. Three children by her first husband were said to be in an orphan asylum.

The statements of Mencken and Asbury follow:

By HENRY J. MENCKEN
Written For The United Press
Those worthy Christians of Farmington simply prove Mr. Asbury's case. My suggestion is that they hang all the town evangelists and begin to read the sermon on the Mount.

By HERBERT ASBURY
Written For The United Press
There is nothing in the article on "Hatrack" that is not true, and I am ready to meet any accusation that it is not an accurate portrayal of conditions, as they existed in small towns as well. Any one who was reared in a small midwestern village will recognize the picture, and can bear witness to the fact that there were many "Hat Racks" and that they were not treated fairly by respectable people of the town. Charity and salvation were for the "nice people" and not for those who really needed them. Farmington appears still to be practicing its peculiar brand of charity toward "Hatrack," by announcing to the world here she received there or equal terms with others or is she merely tolerated?

The time for Farmington to become indignant on "Hatrack's" account was twenty years ago, when the poor creature yearned for decent human companionship and received nothing but scorn and ostracism.

It would be interesting to know what the people of Farmington have done for her during these years. Is she now permitted to belong to a church, and if so, is she received there on equal terms with others or is she merely tolerated?

She was the worthiest object of Christian charity, and sympathy that our town ever had within my recollection and it is most unfortunate that the "nice people" of Farmington, many of whom are wealthy, have not been able to help her family together and her children out of the orphan asylum. If Farmington really wishes to do something for "Hatrack," even at this late day, I shall be glad to contribute according to my means.

HEALTH OF WORKING MEN MENACED BY DRY LAW WITNESS SAYS

Labor Federation Official Attacks Prohibition

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The health of four million working men is menaced by prohibition, William S. Roberts, of the American Federation of Labor told the senate prohibition investigation committee today, presenting labor's plea for beer and light wines.

The man who lives by the sweat of his brow is drinking deleterious spirits which affect his life and health, Roberts said, after announcing himself as personal representative of President William Green of the Federation.

Good beer and light wines would be beneficial Roberts argued.

Roberts outlined a 30,000 mile trip across the country which he took with the late Samuel Gompers. "Everywhere there was plenty of distilled liquor but seldom real beer," he said. "We found homes of the people had been turned into breweries and distilleries turning out dangerous concoctions which would ruin the health of those who drank them to any extent."

MORE men omre more more more "They all asked us, when is congress to realize that the manufacture and sale of beer would make for true temperance?"

Women were also interested in such questions.

"The defenders of the Volstead act apparently prefer to see the people of our country seriously affected by vicious concoctions of liquor rather than to make it a temperance country by legalizing the manufacture of mild beer," Roberts continued. "We are drifting nearer and nearer to becoming a whiskey drinking nation under prohibition."

Roberts outlined the following effects which his organization believes have resulted from prohibition:

"A general disregard of the law among all classes of people, including those who made the law."

"Creation of thousands of moonshiners among both country and city dwellers."

"Creation of an army of bootleggers."

An amazing increase in the traffic in poisonous and deadly concoctions and drugs.

"Increase in taxes to city, state and national government to amount to one thousand million dollars a year."

The argument came up over Dilg's traveling expense account.

Only called the convention to order while one delegate was clamoring for the floor with a motion to elect a temporary chairman. Dilg ruled the motion out of order.

Immediately after the invocation was finished cries of "you can't be a czar," "do you think you're a King?" broke loose in the hall. The body immediately took matters into its own hands.

COLUMBUS, O.—Showing a gain of 352 prisoners during the past ten months, the population of two Ohio penitentiaries at present is 2,881, it was announced by Warden Thomas. At present sleeping quarters have been improvised in the basement of the penitentiary hospital and others are being quartered in a factory building.

EXPLOSION AND FIRE ON RIVER STEAMERS CLAIM HEAVY TOLL

Fifty-Eight Injured After Vessels Wrecked On
Mississippi—Blazing Oil On Water
Thwarts Swimmers

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 9.—From yesterday afternoon until almost daybreak today, the Mississippi River near here was shot with flames, following a series of explosions caused by two ship disasters, the gravest in the history of this port.

Thirty-five men are missing or dead. Fifty-eight were injured and are in hospitals and five vessels have been burned and damaged.

The hours of tragedy began in the Johncke drydock late yesterday when the O. I. Warring was rocked by a series of explosions. Six men are missing from the ship and are believed dead. Forty-three are injured.

Twenty-nine men are missing and believed to have burned to death on the Dutch Tanker Silvanus which drifted down the river from Point A La Hache, after a collision in a night fog with the Standard Oil Tank ship, Thomas H. Wheeler. The vessel caught fire after the head-on crash and a fountain of fire was spread on the river. Those who survived were forced to swim under water blanketed with flaming oil.

An exact check of the number of dead and injured in the Silvanus crash cannot be made until the three ships bringing survivors reach New Orleans today.

The Tropical Radio Company, provided the only means of communication with Point A La Hache.

Members of the crew have been filing "All's well" messages to home folks since the collision and the number indicated, according to radio officials, that the casualty list might be greatly reduced when a complete check is possible.

Fifteen Chinese and Scandinavian members of the crew were being treated today for burns and other injuries.

The six missing from the O. T. Warring, are believed to have been hurled overboard and carried down the swift current of the Mississippi to their deaths.

Reports that mangled bodies are being taken from the wreckage brought scores of relatives to the river bank.

Three ships were still bringing rescued seamen to New Orleans at dawn while extra physicians and nurses were caring for the injured at Charity Hospital.

The harbor was dotted with vessels searching for bodies and ambulances are stationed to meet incoming ships in case more survivors are found by the cruising ships.

Of the damage to vessels the Silvanus is the heaviest victim. It is a total loss. The O. T. Warring suffered $100,000 damage, and the British freighter, Maudslayi, alongside, caught fire and sustained damaged plates from the force of an explosion. Another ship on the starboard side was slightly damaged. The Thomas H. Wheeler is aground and damage is estimated at $300,000.

Captain Weiser, of the Silvanus, was picked up by the American Freighter Topa Lopa, outbound and sent ashore in a small boat.

The Gulf Coast, another freighter, reported by wireless that it had picked up one of the Silvanus.

S. N. Simpson, river pilot of New Orleans, in charge of the Silvanus, is believed drowned.

The Wheeler was bound from Key West to Baton Rouge, while the Silvanus was out bound from New Orleans for New London.

After the craft had collided an explosion occurred first aboard the Silvanus. The crew jumped or were thrown in the river without a chance to lower the lifeboats.

Other vessels made for the burning ship. The Topa Lopa put out lifeboats which were forced to glide on the edge of the burning sea of oil. Other ships clustered nearby but could not go in close to the Silvanus.

Petrus O'Neal, the second engineer of the Silvanus, told his story of the collision and the harrowing experience with the utmost composure.

"Why be excited?" he asked in mild surprise.

"There was little noise when the ships collided," he began.

"I was in the engine room with the first engineer and the fifth."

"We got a signal to stand by, then to slow, then to stop, then to go full speed ahead. There was no sever impact. We followed the signals."

"We saw flames shooting through the grating overhead. The first engineer went up the iron ladder to see what was the matter. The lights went out. The ship tilted as though she would stand on end. I saw the ladder in the dark and reached the deck. I could not see the men who had been below me. The deck was a mass of flames."

"I jumped through them into the water. Suddenly the water was on fire. I ducked under the water. I swam as hard as I could holding my breath. I came out holding my chocking."

"I was behind me and the ship was hidden by flames. There was much smoke. I swam 200 perhaps 300 yards. I felt ground under my feet."

"Just as I reached the shore I saw two other engineers from the ship. Both of them were badly burned about the face. They too had ducked under the water, but they had come up too soon."

HEATON-ANDERSON AT FRIENDS CHURCH

In a season of ferns, palms, southern smilax, pink, white and yellow snapdragons and in the soft light of candles, the marriage of Miss Leona Ruth Heaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heaton and Mr. Carlton D. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Anderson, was solemnized at Friends Church, Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

White bows marked the guest pews, as an effective note in the decorations. Potted greenery was combined with strands of waxy smilax on the altar, with tall standards of graceful snapdragons. Two candleabra were placed on either side of the altar which added to the effect.

Marking the beginning of the ceremony, Miss Helen Hurley, sang "I Love You Truly," and "O Promise Me," accompanied by Mrs. Mary Imman, who blended into the Lohengrin wedding march. Miss Hurley wore a frock of blue with shoulder bouquet of sweet peas in variegated colors and Mrs. Imman wore green silk with a wrist bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Bridal party marched to the altar down the two aisles, Miss Mary Jones, maid of honor leading the bride's procession. She wore lavender taffeta, fashioned in the Colonial style with a quaint fichu and ruffles. She carried an arm bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses. Her slippers were of silver. Master "Junior" Heaton, ring bearer, walked next. He was dressed in a black velvet suit and carried the ring concealed in a basket of rose petals.

The bride entered with her father. Her gown was of georgette, beaded in rhinestones and made along straight, girlish lines, with side godets. Her veil of tulle was caught with a band of orange blossoms and fell to the floor. White slippers completed her accessories and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies, made into three parts.

The bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Ernest Randall, and the officiating clergyman, the Rev. Russell Burkett, came down the other aisle and met the bride and her attendants at the altar. The single ring ceremony was performed.

Reception at the Heaton home on S. Detroit St., followed the ceremony. Southern smilax, pink and white roses decorated the rooms of the Heaton home. Fifty guests were received by the bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Heaton and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Anderson. Mrs. Heaton wore a gown of ashes of roses shade and her attendants at the altar. The single ring ceremony was performed.

A three-course dinner was served, other guests being seated at quarter tables. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left Thursday night for Cleveland and Lima where they will spend the honeymoon. Mrs. Anderson's traveling outfit was of grey hat, coat and footwear with a blue frock and scarf.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are graduates of the Class of 1923, Central High School. Mr. Anderson is employed as salesman for the Lang Chevrolet Agency. Mrs. Anderson has been honored with a number of pre-nuptial parties.

COLVIN-HECKER MARRIAGE OF INTEREST

Greene County relatives were in attendance when Miss Amy Frances Colvin, younger daughter of Mrs. Grace P. Colvin, Delaware, O., became the bride of Mr. Arthur William Hecker, Cleveland, at William Street Church, Delaware, Tuesday evening.

The wedding was solemnized with handsome dignity. Just before the entrance of the bridal party, Mr. John C. Whitcomb, Delaware, at the organ played "At Dawning," blending into the Lohengrin march. The officiating ministers with the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. C. Carver Rople, Cleveland, entered from the vestry and awaited the bride and her attendants at the altar. The ushers were fraternity brothers of the valley and at Cornell University, who led the bridal procession.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Helen Blair, Ruth Stephens and Ruth Thomson, Delaware and Miss Jane Pontius, Dayton. They all wore georgette gowns with beaded trimmings, silver slippers and carried arm bouquets, contrasting with the tints of their gowns.

The bride entered alone and was an exquisite picture in her bridal gown of white satin, fashioned bouffant style with inserts of chantilly lace and ribbon roses. The long court train was of georgette and satin and the tulle veil, fashioned and fastened with pearls and rhinestones, fell to the end of the train. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley and orchids. She was joined at the altar by her mother who gave her in marriage. Mrs. Colvin wore blue georgette with a corsage of yellow roses and orchids.

The single ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edwin W. Thornton, Cincinnati, cousin of the bride, assisted by her pastor, the Rev. F. Wade Smith.

Informal reception at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bryant, followed. Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Hecker left by motor for an extended trip through the South.

The bride, who attended Ohio Wesleyan University, is a member of Gamma Phi sorority and is well known locally. The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hecker, Cleveland. He attended Cornell University and is a member of Delta Phi fraternity. He is connected with The Supply Distributors Corporation, Cleveland; where he will take his bride to reside.

Local attendants at the ceremony included: Mrs. Horace McMillan, near Wilmington; Mrs. G. A. McKay, Miss Nello G. McKay, Mrs. J. W. Middleton, and Mr. Alvin Middleton, Xenia.

Banish Them Quick Eczema—Stubborn Skin Eruptions

OCEAN-O, DEEP SEA WATER BLOOD TREATMENT, WILL DO IT OR SAYRE'S DRUG STORE WILL RETURN THE PRICE

You've heard of Ocean-O, of course. Physicians have been using it for years. It is pure deep sea water distilled, concentrated and filtered and with the excess of common salt removed.

So when you have skin eruptions that torture or embarrass you it's probably because your blood is starving for the want of just those vitalizing mineral elements that deep sea water or Ocean-O can furnish. When you start to rid yourself of pimples, acne, hives, scaly skin, boils and other stubborn skin diseases with Ocean-O, all you need is one teaspoonful in a glass of cold water and you drink this night and morning. That means that a bottle will last a long time.

One doctor says that in a case of general psoriasis of several years standing the eruption began to fade in a week—yet we are told it cannot be overcome.

Ask Sayre's Drug Store or any reliable drugist for a bottle of Ocean-O today and start to banish skin eruptions.

Use one bottle as directed and if it doesn't help you—get your money back. —Adv.

A Famous Man

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood, as well as the "Favorite Prescription" for women, was Dr. Ray V. Pierce, a practicing physician in Western Pennsylvania. He early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established The Invalids' Hotel, then he put up his home remedies in the World's Dispensary, where they were carefully prepared from roots, barks and herbs, and placed them with druggists all over the United States.

Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists all over the United States than any other medicine. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a tonic in its effect on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its actions on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's family medicines, in tablets or liquid or send ten cents for a trial package of any of Dr. Pierce's Medicines in tablet form, to Doctor Pierce's Clinic, in Buffalo, N. Y. —Adv.

MANDATE RECEIVED FROM HIGHER COURT IN GAMBLING CASES

Mandate of the state supreme court's ruling upholding the lower courts in the conviction of Bruce Leveck, Jamestown, Albert Smith, John Hornick and Horace Prince, all of Xenia, on charges of recording wagers and permitting recording of bets on horse races, has been certified to Probate Court from Common Pleas Court, and Sheriff Morris Sharp is expected to be supplied with a mittimus for service on the four men either Friday or Saturday.

With litigation in the cases apparently at an end, fines and sentences originally imposed upon the four by Probate Judge S. C. Wright will be executed as soon as possible, according to simultaneous announcements by Judge Wright and Prosecutor J. C. Marshall, Friday.

DAMAGE SUIT BASED ON CROSSING DEATH STARTED IN COURT

Trial of the $2,800 damage suit of James Cotner, as administrator of the estate of Russell Conner, deceased, against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., growing out of a crossing accident at Roxanna nearly a year ago in which Russell Conner lost his life, was begun in Common Pleas Court Friday morning before Judge R. L. Gowdy and a jury of three women and nine men.

The company is charged with negligence and carelessness in that a view of the tracks was obstructed by frame buildings and a line of freight cars. The train gave no warning, was moving at the rate of sixty miles an hour and the crossing was not properly guarded, the administrator alleges.

Decedent's surviving father, mother and two brothers have been damaged to the extent of $2,800 by his death, it is claimed.

Charles L. Darlington is attorney for the plaintiff and Matthews and Harry D. Smith are attorneys for the defendant.

Personnel of the jury: C. M. Huston, Walter Stoops, D. L. Paulin, Charles Hatch, Ed Evans, Fred Erwin, Della Johnson, Nora Sollers, Frank Doster, Wilson Davis, George Bradley and Kate Gibbs.

LOSES ATTEMPT TO HALT ANNEXATION MADE BY FAIRFIELD

Lewis F. Miller, Fairfield, lost in the Court of Appeals his attempt to prevent the village of Fairfield from annexing a small tract of land containing four or five acres, owned by him, located at the entrance of Wilbur Wright Field.

Appellate court, in a decision rendered Thursday, affirmed the Common Pleas judgment for the defendant in Miller's injunction suit against the village.

Suit originated when Fairfield attempted to annex two tracts of land, one of about fifty acres north on the Springfield Pike, and Miller's property at the entrance to the government flying station.

Miller's petition alleged several irregularities in the proceedings at a hearing before County Commissioners. Higher court held Miller owned all real estate annexed to Fairfield and was the only party adversely interested.

It was also held any irregularities in the notice of the proceedings before the commissioners would not be prejudicial because Miller appeared before that body and was represented at the hearing.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy sustained a demurrer to the petition filed by Attorney J. A. Finney, Charles L. Darlington was attorney for the plaintiff.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Mon-billous, feverish or sick from a tello, ill, a practicing physician cold, indigestion or sour stomach, for forty-seven years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he constantly advised mothers to give only a harmless laxative which would help to establish natural bowel "regularity."

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin mothers have a regulating laxative which they can depend upon whenever a child is constipated.

WHY STUDY HISTORY?

THE time is coming—and the sooner the better—when the small boy's plaintive "aw, what's the use o' studying all this stuff?" will not arouse a vague query of what, indeed, is the use, in the mind of his elders. In the case of history, at least, results will be extremely practical, as well as merely disciplining the mind—and keeping the same boy out of mischief during certain hours of the day.

Since history was first recorded, nations have risen and fallen. They have risen when they were observed certain laws of growth, and they have fallen when they have disregarded them. Over and over again, in dizzy succession, wars have appeared, provoked by the same causes, and preceded by the same succession of events. In spite of tremendous contributions to knowledge that are constantly being made, history continues placidly and irresistibly to repeat itself, with the same successes and the same mistakes.

There must be certain elements of worth in these historical movements or they would not be recurring again and again. There must be danger signals on the paths that lead to disaster. The statesman must be quick to recognize both in a careful study of history, and hasten to apply them to the problems of the day in an eminently practical way. Then there will be no question as to why history is studied.

THE BRAIN IS SUPREME

REMEMBER how on Fourth of July night you used to take a little fireworks stick called a sparkler, and whirl it about? You wove circles, figure eights, all sorts of fantastic patterns in the air. And at that time you didn't realize that the figures you were seeing didn't exist at all. It was your eyes that were deceiving you.

Try the same experiment any time with a match or a glowing cigar. You can't trust your eyes. That's why so many of us need glasses.

You can't trust your nose, either. The sweetish, almond smell may come from deadly cyanide of potassium. Many of the poison gases in the World War had a not unpleasant smell—at first.

Your ears are just as unreliable. Just try to whistle a tune in someone's presence. Unless you are a phenomenon, you'll whistle mostly wrong notes, off key. Your whistler's all right. It's your ear that's playing a trick on you.

Your taste, allied to smell, is equally deceptive. The sense of touch is probably the most reliable of all, but it is a poor thing at best. How would you like to sit down blindfolded among enemies and agree to eat whatever you might be permitted to feel of?

Then, if the five senses are such poor servants, how is it we get along so well with their aid? It is because the brain directing them is more perfect than any one sense. When the eyes fail, the brain orders the touch-sense and the hearing-sense to help out.

No life, no home, no business, can be successfully carried on without a central mind more capable than any of the subordinates. Just as your senses, co-operating, achieve what no single one could do, so in your every activity you will find most success if you, to, learn to co-operate. Know when to subordinate yourself, and be not afraid when it comes your time to command.

MIGRATORY MAN

IMAGINE a man on Mars looking at Earth through an enormous telescope—how strange it would seem to him if he never saw any of the inhabitants on this globe move out of their own tiny locality! He would see at the same time the whole curve of this planet; and the many marvelous things, and the different people scattered over it; he might yearn to cross the vast interstellar spaces and see those things and meet those people face to face, and he would envy them their opportunity that would be denied him. But if the Earth-dwellers never pay any attention to the other things that are to be found around their planet; and if they never move out of their own vicinity—how ridiculous that would appear to be! When there is so much to see over Earth's rim.

This great globe hurtling through eternal space belongs to man. It is far more to man than just a place to live. One of the greatest opportunities it affords its human children is to learn all about the amazing variety of things existing on its surface. What is beyond the horizon? Today—during the routine course of daily events—elsewhere there are beyond the horizon many strange sights, odd folks and scenes remarkable for their beauty and grandeur. What is the average man's perspective of all these things most worth while?

Should man be content to attach himself to one little spot on this vast sphere and shut his eyes and ears to all that is beyond that encircling horizon which is his voluntary prison? Are men and women with the wanderlust to be rebuked? On the contrary, what an ignorant, narrow-minded bigoted and provincial world this would be if man were not migratory both by instinct and by choice.

AMERICAN WORKMEN AN EXAMPLE

CERTAIN English trades agitators have urged the adoption of Soviet ideas as the salvation of the English laborer. With a far clearer and more rational vision, Premier Baldwin urges the trades unions to come to America and study labor conditions. Labor in Russia is at the absolute bottom of the social, financial, moral and political scale—that is, all labor but the organized military oligarchy. Premier Baldwin knows this fact, and to him Russia is a terrible model. But he sees in America the best paid, the most prosperous, the most independent, the best-living workman in the history of the world. He would have his countrymen take lessons from the best, instead of the worst.

NOW THEN, ALL TOGETHER!

1906-Twenty Years Ago-1926

With spring weather here, Xenians are looking forward to the coming of natural gas. Work on the main line has been resumed, and pipes are nearing Xenia.

The C. H. and D. freight office will soon undergo quite a change and an enlargement. Mr. William Graser, who has been employed at the depot restaurant for some time as night clerk, has resigned to become a drummer in a circus.

Mr. T. Dales Kyle, assistant cashier of the Citizens National Bank, has disposed of his residence on N. Galloway St., to Mrs. E. H. Carrthers, of Philadelphia.

The Conwell hardware store and carriage emporium is a scene of busy activity getting ready for the big opening these sandwiches one hard-boiled egg, and a wedge of raisin pie.

Stuffed White Potatoes: Pare large white potatoes. Rub the exteriors with bacon fat or beef drippings (this gives a good crust) and bake till done through, on a pan containing a little butter. When baked cut in half, scoop out some of the interior of each half, add a little canned deviled ham, or a little fried and chopped bacon—or any desired combination—then restuff the halves with the mixture. Press the potato together again and wrap in wax paper. Every bit of the potato may thus be eaten, without the bother of scooping out the mealy part from skins. With one large stuffed potato, pack two slices meat sandwiches, a couple of pieces of lettuce, and either cake and fruit, or a fruit pie.

THE CARRIED LUNCH

A Column Friend, who signs herself, "Just a Reader of the Paper," has written to ask for "different" sandwiches and dishes for a carried lunch, for an adult. The child's carried school lunch should contain only simple too—simple sandwiches, a baked custard, fruit and simple cakes. But a grown person's lunchbox may be filled from a far wider choice of dishes. Try some of the following:

Beef Loaf: One pound of lean beef chopped, one egg well beaten, two soda crackers rolled, butter size of a walnut, one-half cup of sweet, cold milk, and salt and pepper to season well. Mix all well together and form into a loaf. Bake one hour in a moderate oven with a little water in the bottom of the loaf. A generous slice of this makes a nourishing lunch-box dish. It could be served hot

Today's Talk

The Power of the Mind

The wisest man now living will never know but a portion of the mystery of the mind.

What a vital organ it is! Life is a blank without its perfect health. How it shapes all the ways and means of human activity.

There seems to be no limit to what the mind may achieve.

What a spectacle when a strong man stands forth with a great idea or an unusual purpose and asserts the power of his mind. Who can withstand a determined mind that is working for a good beyond the little aims of self?

Hearsey, an article in a paper, or simply something merely imagined, may color and cloud the mind so that it affects the entire working of the bodily machine. It is possible for the man with little faith to pound away at the man of great faith until his faith is undermined.

How far a little kindness or encouragement goes!

There is nothing more cruel than to pour fresh discouragement upon the one already discouraged.

I have a friend who could not sleep all night because of something heard during the evening that savored of bad news. Later there were those who disabused the mind of my friend, encouraged him and proved to him that what he had heard was without foundation.

But the damage had been done. If you cannot make your friend happy by what you have to say, say nothing. The power of the mind to bring beauty, strength, ambition, and a change of heart to another, is one of its greatest blessings of the Creator.

Cheerful thoughts, dreamings, and noble desires make the mind more powerful. This mind is the greatest weapon we have for the guarding of our happiness.

Be careful what you say to others. It is possible for you to guide many a life by the strength of your faith and the courage of your convictions, and to uphold a faltering spirit that has been poisoned by the whisperings of some stampered person.

Always stand your ground and remember that there is no proof that the other fellow has a more powerful mind than you have. Nothing is powerful that doesn't get that way through use.

Young vigor to old folks

"I suffered after eating, traveled with torpid liver, constipation, had no energy, lost 30 pounds. After taking Tanlac I made 100 per cent improvement and four bottles rid me of my troubles." J. E. Owen, 40 Clarendon Ave., Columbus, O.

One of Tanlac's greatest blessings is the new life and vigor it brings to old folks. Every day men and women up in the seventies and eighties thank us for Tanlac's wondrous benefits.

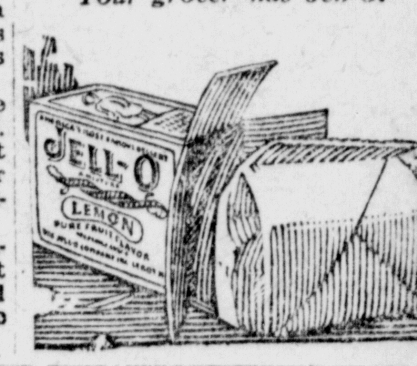

Tanlac is a natural tonic, made from roots, barks and rare herbs. Harmless to man or child. It cleans the blood, stirs up the liver and puts digestive organs in working order.

If your body is weak and run-down, if you lack ambition, can't eat or sleep, you'll be delighted with Tanlac's results. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

THE ROUNDED LIFE

When you have done with your business and ended your battle for gain.

When you have come to your glory and gathered the price of your pain.

What have you captured that's lasting more than the love of your own.

The love of your wife and your children, the love of the friends you have known?

Give heed to the life you are building, for in truth 'tis a life that you build: Is it a temple of gladness, with pictures and memories filled.

Or is it a sepulchre ghastly, a tomb that is silent and cold. With nothing to warm you or cheer you but columns of silver and gold?

You were born to be strong, to be happy, to laugh and to sing through the years; You were born to know life in its fullness, with all of its heartaches and tears; You were born to know roses and blossoms and the numberless pleasures of earth; So stunt not your life as the miser, who reckons in money his worth.

For when, age shall descend with its shadows and the end of the battle is seen.

You will find the brave heart and the gentle as rich as the richest has been.

For his life shall be blended with beauty, he shall treasure of memory own.

While the slave to his millions of dollars shall sit at his desk all alone.

Take time for the pleasure of living, take time to be friendly and kind; Be more than a maker of money, grow richer in heart and in mind;

Be a glorious comrade and neighbor, know the meaning of laughter and tears; Live bravely and gladly and fully, and you will not have wasted the years.

MODISH MITZI—Sportswear That Is Sport To Wear

BY J. V. JAY

The Goofer and Dad are doing a little indoor practice. Sort of making sure that the moths haven't got into the clubs or the mice haven't dined too well on catgut strings. They are discussing the matter of handicaps when Aunt Sophia announces that the girls have gone to the country club with their golf bags. That may not interest Dad so much, but for the Goofer any direction that Mitzi takes immediately becomes desirable. Dad, looking at Aunt Sophia's new dress of navy blue with its embroidered sleeves and tab collar, thinks he'll stay home. The neckline comes to a V—a motif that is carried out on the skirt by godets.

It would be more than the Goofer's luck to find Mitzi alone anywhere. Here they are—Polly, Adelaide and Mitzi having tea and in deep earnest conversation. It happens that they are talking about their new sport frocks. Polly wears the horizontal striped sweater with a flannel sports skirt. Adelaide wears a two-piece dress with a colored jumper, giving a sweater effect. Mitzi wears a two-piece dress with a jacket, the dress is sleeveless. The jacket is banded in the same material as the dress. Sports wear seems to be such sport to wear that the game is of small moment—or so the outcast Goofer feels.

ANTIOCH NINE WILL MEET DAYTON FOES

Traditional baseball foes will meet once more in the first of a two-game series for diamond supremacy, when the Antioch College nine, guided by Coach Earl Prugh, goes to Dayton to do battle with Coach Harry Bauman's University of Dayton Flyers Saturday afternoon.

Group of players of the "B" division of the school, with either Allen, MacLean or Dawson on the mound, is expected to give the Flyers a run for their pennies.

The good word on the Antioch nine this season is not so bad after all despite a reverse in its first start of the year. Miami University diamond men made Coach Prugh's pets take on the aspect of sand-lotters in the life-lifting contest a week ago but Antioch gives promise of developing a much stronger team than it is given credit for.

BOWLING

Bowling in the Class A and B divisions of the individual city bowling tournament Thursday night at times reached sensational heights, particularly in the finals of the three-game series when every entrant exceeded the 200 mark.

Charles Malavazos furnished a slight upset in Class A when he defeated Arch Jeffries two out of three games, although the loser had two games above 200. Earl Short dropped to third position in Class B when he lost two games to Fred Harner, breaking the triple tie for top place.

As a Nation—We Believe In Santa Claus!

There is no Nation on the face of the Globe that lives like us Americans! The Luxury of today is the Necessity of tomorrow and ALL of us participate in these good things—not alone the independently wealthy. And there are a lot of otherwise straight thinkers who look on this condition with FEAR for the FUTURE!

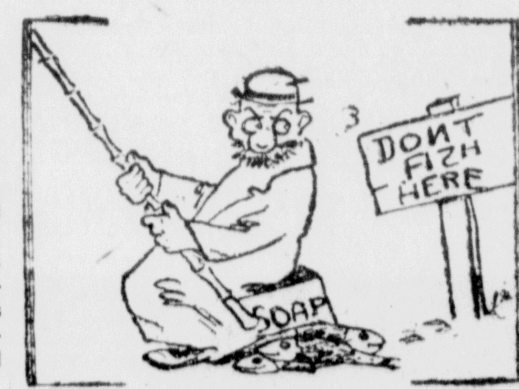

We wear the best shoes, the best clothes, own more homes, and BETTER homes, drive more automobiles, manipulate more radios, play more hours, get bigger pay, see better shows, have better general HEALTH and the BEST TEETH than any other set of folks in a panting world!

And for the life of one, I can't see where anybody's got anything to fear! We had quite a scuffle here a few years back in the World War, but looking over the returns we didn't see any PARTICULAR evidence of Uncle Sam getting soft, flabby and goofy from high living. Not so it was remarked on—Anyways!

Which assortment of thoughts may or may NOT have anything to do with this business but they were on my chest and needed a thorough airing!

What are YOUR feelings on this subject?

DOC SAYRE.

Personally I think Doc Sayre is starting to crank up a sweat for the 4th of July! It's too far off for Christmas or I'd suspicion he was working up a Xmas Sale. It's a fact tho' that a lean pocketbook never keeps an American from eating, livin', wearin', and drivin' how and WHAT HE WANTS! And he lives in a country that'll permit him (without hooks) to CHANGE the size of his pocketbook anytime he sees fit.

Which reminds me that Doc Sayre can raise MY pay any time he feels like it.

ENERGY GALORE!

When you GOT it, the job that is hard seems easy and MORE money is your reward. The chaps that just "get by" are usually those who lack energy. So why take chances when Rexall Syrup Hypophosphites taken PERSISTENTLY for say, 60 days will increase your RPM and HP a 100 per cent. ...

Why NOT Have Soft Hands!

It's an evidence of culture, of refinement and is ALWAYS in good taste. Housework roughens them but NOT if you wear a pair of our $1.00 Rubber Gloves.

Statisticians in a position to know and whose business it is to keep in touch with facts of sum of money you ladies spent this sort say that THIS is the 1925 on TOILETRIES. Telephone Birthday Is Being Celebrated Friday

Xenia Got Telephone Five Years After Its Invention—Late L. H. Whiteman Was Pioneer—Early Newspaper Story Tells of Start

Forty-five years ago—just five years after its invention—the telephone came to Xenia.

From a beginning that time has cloaked in semi-obscurity, the story of the telephone in Xenia is one of continuous progress, of ever increasing popularity and of steady substantial growth. From one lonely, almost useless instrument back in those days of 1881, has sprung more than 2,400 telephones which bind Xenia together in a communicating system that extends to nearly every home.

It was on March 10, 1876, when the first complete sentence was transmitted over the telephone by its inventor, Alexander Graham Bell. The nation wondered a bit and there was some mild interest, but most of the attention drawn by the baby invention was based on ridicule.

Five years later the telephone reached Xenia. It was still in the swaddling clothes of infancy, still regarded in many quarters as a toy or plaything and only a few months away from public denunciation. Yet many people hailed it as the wonder of the age, and were beginning to appreciate its eventual possibilities. Among these were the men behind the venture that established the first Xenia exchange.

Let us go back over that period of forty-five years and revive the incidents of those days of telephone pioneering—incidents which today would be laughable, but in those days were marvelous happenings, which now are taken as a matter of course.

Starting a telephone exchange in 1881 meant real pioneering in a field that was nearly as virgin as America in the days of Christopher Columbus. There were no beaten paths to follow, no experts to give advice and assistance. Subscribers had to be obtained and to get them it was necessary to convince them of the worth of the telephone. Then poles had to be placed and wire strung and the instrument connected with the central office. It was all one operation to the early telephone man, who did all the work required, even to digging the pole holes and getting the subscriber.

As stated before, the early days of Xenia's telephone system were more or less obscured as the men in charge then were so busy fighting their business lives that accurate records were not kept for posterity. In fact it some times appears that the telephone system here, like Topsy, "just grewed." The first actual subscriber was the law firm of Little and Shearer and it was in that office that the first instrument was installed.

The idea of a local telephone system for Xenia came up in 1880. Dayton and other nearby towns had telephone systems in operation and it was felt that Xenia should pace with the progress of its neighbors. In April, 1881, the first Xenia telephone exchange was opened. It went under the name of the Xenia Telephone Company.

At that time the telephone business in Xenia was more or less of an experiment. In fact, the business office and the switchboard were located in one room and then there was plenty of space for expansion. This was located over what was then the Fleming Hardware store.

The first switchboard was what is known in telephone circles as a "joints board" and was made in Cincinnati. It had a capacity of fifty lines and was regarded as a model of those days. This board and the telephone exchange in general was an object of great curiosity to Xenia people, who deemed it a great privilege to visit the office, watch connections made and then go home and marvel over the manner in which subscribers were connected.

Telephone rates in those days were not arranged as now. The official rate for business subscribers was $3.50 and for residence it was one dollar per month. However, there was a catch in the rate since unless subscribers furnished their own bell, the telephone company furnished the bell and then charged the subscriber an extra dollar each month. Very few subscribers furnished the bell.

As an example of the way Xenia people felt about the telephone, the following clipping taken from the Xenia Gazette of April 15, 1881, is enlightening:

"The Xenia Telephone Exchange is a fixed fact. The office of Fleming's Hardware store, a number of wires are now in connection, an operator constantly in attendance, and the enterprise is in successful operation. Three or four men are now busily engaged in putting up the wires. The longest lines will be those reaching the Orphan's Home and the Rope Walk. Mr. Whiteman, the superintendent, thinks he will have at least sixty firms and business places in connection as soon as he can put up the poles and wires."

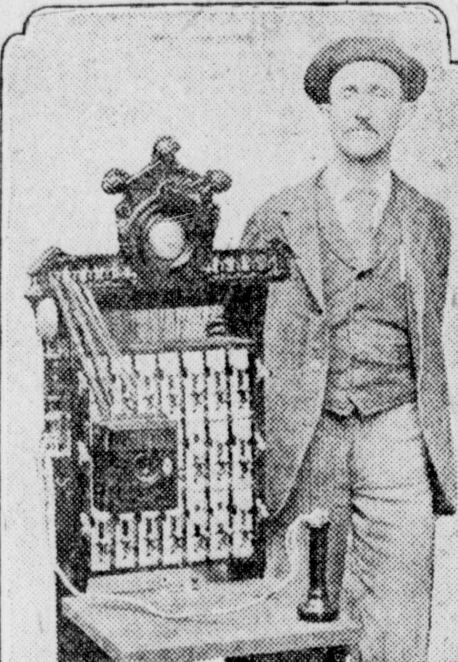

"The depots, banks, and principal physicians' offices will be in the connection. The advantage that this enterprise will be to the business community is almost incalculable. The time is not far distant when every principal residence will also be in the connection, so that when an article is wanted at the grocery or other store, it will be ordered by telephone. And as the money can't be sent by telephone what a good excuse there will be for saying: 'Charge it.' In this way the price of the telephone can soon be saved."

"The following is a partial list of those who have given orders to be 'put in connection': both depots, both banks; Doctors Moore and Jones, Brundage, McClung, Gallows and Dice; Attorneys Darlington, Munger, Little and Shearer, Alexander and Spencer, Judge Hawes at courthouse; Coal dealers, Smart, Thornhill, Heaton and Fleming; Grocers, Dean and Hopkins; both firms of undertakers; Drugist Fleming; Livermen, Kyle and Dowling; M. C. Allison's office; Park restaurant; E. N. Forsythe's lumber yard; Dr. Jones' residence and Charles Darlington's residence."

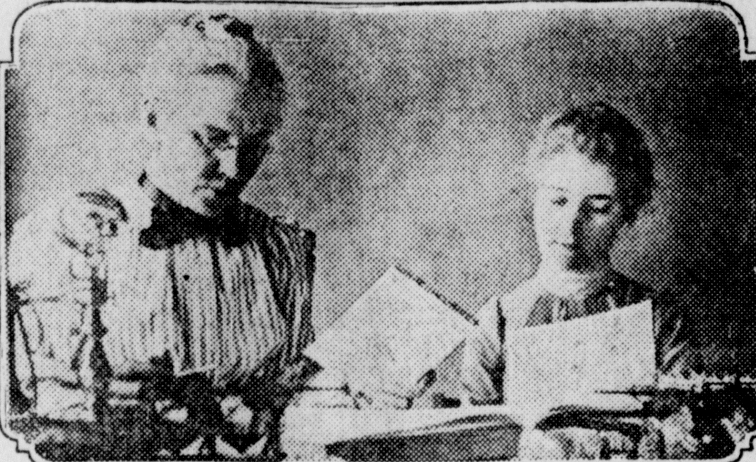

Thus was the coming of the telephone heralded in the newspaper of that day.

Ideas that seem strange now were often worked to advantage by the early telephone employees. One instance of this is the planting of trees to serve as poles for the wire. Present-day telephony is more hindered by trees than aided since

BANQUET FOR EARLY SUBSCRIBERS WILL FEATURE OCCASION

Speakers Will Recall Start Of Phone Company Here

In celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the telephone and the forty-fifth year of its use in Xenia, more than a half hundred early telephone users, early telephone employees, present officials and representatives of various local civic organizations will gather at a banquet and reminiscence meeting in the dining room of the Elks' Club Friday night.

It was fifty years ago last month that the first complete sentence was transmitted over telephone wires and it is because of this and the fact that the first Xenia telephone exchange was established in April 1881, that the date of April 9 was selected for the Xenia celebration. Similar observances are being held in twenty-eight other of the larger exchanges operated by The Ohio Bell Telephone Company while a number of others are being held in places operated by independent companies.

The Xenia exchange, while not the oldest in the state, ranks as one of the very first. Dayton which had a telephone in 1878, two years after its invention, is the oldest exchange in Ohio Bell territory.

The banquet, which is planned to begin at 6 Friday evening, will be followed by short talks by early telephone employees and will be confined to reminiscences of the first days.

Among the early telephone workers, who will be present, is Miss Elizabeth Kyle, one of the earliest living woman operators of Xenia telephone history, having been the second employed here. George Little, fourth manager of the company is another, who will be present and make a talk.

W. G. Barry, general commercial superintendent of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company, with headquarters in Cleveland, A. F. Hardman, assistant to the general manager, also of Cleveland, W. C. Newton, southern division commercial superintendent, of Columbus, L. J. House, special agent of the commercial superintendent, Columbus, Harry E. Allen, district manager of Dayton, are among officials of the Ohio Bell, who will attend. Mr. Barry is expected to make the principal talk from the company standpoint.

A Kettle That Holds 5000 Gallons

When Lydia E. Pinkham first began to make her Vegetable Compound she used her largest kettle on the kitchen stove.

Today, the Vegetable Compound is made in great steel tanks, lined with glass. Each tank holds 5,000 gallons. To keep pace with the demand for this famous medicine, a tankful is made every two days.

Throughout the entire process of manufacture the utmost care is taken. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is accurately made under sanitary conditions. Public inspection of the Laboratories at Lynn, Mass., is constantly invited.

USED CAR WEEK

The other day I bought a car in which I hoped to travel far. My neighbor's car was old and frayed and of the first bunch ever made, while mine had run but two short years and had the latest horn and gears.

But when my neighbors saw my bus, they sure put up an awful fuss. My brother Jim came from afar and said: "Gee, what a splendid car! And see the tires it has, by jing! The spotlight, horn and everything." He said my car took his eye and that I had made a splendid buy.

And then another fellow came, whose line was just about the same. Said he: "You got a bargain, Bill, and when I buy a car I will look up the man who sold you this and know that I won't go amiss."

I have a soft upholstered seat with rubber carpet at my feet. I've tools and tubes and dandy brakes and springs that easy riding makes. And I appreciate all these when I go riding where I please.

My car is made of finest steel and will not run down at the heel; for it's only loudest praise and hope to use many days. They said it was a good used car but I have found it better far than some new cars that I have seen that wasted tires and gasoline.

Oh, I am proud of my used bus and it brings lots of joy to us. I drive it now wherever I like, on city streets or country pike. I shift my clutch from low to high, I pick a chaser from my eye, to other cars I say "Goodbye" as down the road I hike.

USED CAR SALE THIS WEEK

They've used cars galore
But suggest you go quick
And get the best buy
While the bargains are thick.

Sporty young dandies who have been driving about with pictures of bathing beauties pasted on their windshields may or may not be giving their kind and undivided attention to the manipulating of their cars, but they do have something to look forward to. Buy a used car tomorrow and you'll have days of pleasure ahead to look forward to.

The man is trying to explain the situation to a woman who is not listening. THREE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

SPLIT RAIL BLAMED WHEN PENNSY TRAIN THROWN FROM TRACK

Trainmen Pinned In Cab
—Car Rolls Down
Embankment

CAMDEN, N. J., April 9.—Three persons are dead and more than a score were in hospitals today as a result of the wreck of a Pennsylvania train at Morris Junction. A split rail caused train, which was known as the "Nellie Blie" and was made up entirely of club cars and Pullmans, to leave the track, according to railway officials today.

The first car rolled down a ten foot embankment and landed bottom side up.

The engineer and fireman were pinned in the locomotive cab and scalded by escaping steam. They died in a hospital here.

Nearly all the twenty-five passengers in the first car were seriously injured.

KILLED BY FALL FROM HOTEL WINDOW

CHICAGO, Apr. 9.—Leo J. Ainsworth, president of the Ainsworth Radio Co., was killed instantly today when he fell from the nineteenth floor of a burning hotel building here. As Ainsworth, his hands burned, clung to a window ledge, 300 feet above the street, three persons, one of them a woman, were forming a human chain in an effort to rescue him. Before they could reach the man, however, his grasp broke and he plunged to the pavement.

The fire originated in Ainsworth's room. Police believe he fell asleep while smoking a cigarette, the fog igniting the bedding.

The Ainsworth family resides in Cleveland.

WILL PROBE DEATH OF KENYON TEACHER

MOUNT VERNON, O., April 9.—Not satisfied with the explanation of circumstances surrounding the death of Professor Walter Denston, assistant instructor in mathematics at Kenyon College authorities today began an investigation which they hope will clear up the mystery.

Professor Denston died last night from a gun shot wound supposedly inflicted accidentally by himself. The instructor was found in a woodland Wednesday night, after his wife notified authorities he was missing.

Earlier in the day Denston obtained his rifle and told his wife he was going out to shoot at a target. He was a native of England and federal officials have begun an investigation of his citizenship.

FRANCE AND SPAIN WILL SUE FOR PEACE

PARIS, April 9.—A peace conference to end the Franco-Spanish war against Abd El Krim's Riffians and allied tribes in Morocco is expected to begin within ten days and peace would be established within a month, it was announced today.

The Franco-Spanish plenipotentiaries will meet the enemy plenipotentiaries at Oudja, North Africa. Meanwhile French military activity in Morocco will continue, but it is unlikely that there will be a major offensive.

The French war office believes two weeks will suffice for the negotiations as the principal points have been decided.

The foreign office today announced that Krim had accepted the general conditions of the peace.

WEATHER BUREAU FOR YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 9.—(UP)—Establishment of a United States Weather Bureau in Youngstown is believed near as the result of negotiations now under way between the government and officials of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

The government's plan, as outlined in recent conferences between weather bureau and company officials, is to use equipment now in the field engineer's office in private weather observation work.

Instruments and records would be invaluable to the government should the bureau be established, company authorities believe.

In the Battle of Wets and Drys

Here are three leaders in the prohibition fight which is now being waged before a committee of the U. S. Senate. Left to right they are: Senator Reed, of Missouri, spokesman for the wets; Senator Means, of Colorado, chairman of the committee, and Senator Walsh, of Montana, a "dry."

GOVERNMENT TAKEN SERIOUSLY BY NONE SAYS BISHOP BROWN

Congress Is Joke Heretic
Informs Labor
Meeting

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—"The government is suffering from senile dementia and is not taken seriously by any one," in the opinion of William Montgomery Brown of Galion, Ohio, deposed heretic Bishop of the Episcopal Church. "Labor is climbing into the saddle of world affairs and the government and church are breaking down," declared Bishop Brown, addressing the International Labor defense organization here last night. "The government used to be a bulwark of capitalism. Now it is the bulwark of nothing at all. Congress is a joke, the state legislatures are jokes and we are living under prohibition agents, not prohibition."

The deposed bishop said that after the war "congress set out to do something silly and succeeded. It could not abolish war or poverty, so it abolished beer," he said, adding that "the country has been in the hands of bootleggers ever since."

"Do not assume that I am attacking prohibition," he declared. "I never have seen any prohibition."

Bishop Brown then reverted to a discussion of Heaven, declaring the church "asks people to accept an impossible theory that nobody can know anything about."

"If you happen to want a real Heaven instead of an imaginary one, you are a heretic," he said.

COLLEGE STUDENTS ARE NOT JAZZ-WILD

GRANVILLE, O., April 9.—That the young men and women of our colleges are not all the jazz-wild gin-drinking, and frivolity type that the novelists of the "Plastic Age" school are apt to portray is clearly evidenced by a self-imposed rule that the student government association of Denison University recently passed.

The rule, which makes a strict interpretation of honor, affects eligibility to hold students office in the university. It provides that no one guilty of "probing" or "cheating" in any manner shall be eligible for even a minor office under the student government, and is just one of the many manifestations of the high regard for honor in the school.

The student government association conducts an honor court, and its punishments range from a failure in the course in which the misdemeanor occurred, to dismissal from school.

FRENCH MINISTER OF INTERIOR QUILTS

PARIS, April 9.—The cabinet today accepted the resignation of Louis Malvy, minister of interior, Jean Durand, minister of agriculture was named by Premier Briand to succeed Malvy.

Malvy's presence in the Briand ministry formed following the defeat of the Briand government on March 6, aroused tremendous opposition among Right deputies who charged he had never been cleared of wartime charges of treason for which he was once exiled.

During a debate in the chamber following the League of Nations meeting at Geneva, a scorching attack was launched at Malvy. He sought to reply but could hardly speak for emotion. A few minutes later, he collapsed, and he had not appeared in the chamber since.

LOWERING SKIES AGAIN BRING PROMISE OF HEAVY RAIN FALL

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—Lowering skies again today brought new threats of heavy seasonal rains, but no immediate flood danger was feared.

After pouring from the heavens incessantly for forty-eight hours, the rains of Thursday gave way to clear skies and it was believed any flood danger had been passed.

Dense cloud banks swirled over many sections of the state today, however, and according to the general weather forecast, tons of moisture may be poured into the already swelling streams tonight.

Rivers and creeks throughout the state were still on the rampage today but none, with the exception of a few creeks and one river, advanced far beyond the lowlands.

In the Bowling Green area conditions were considered grave. The Dixie highway was under eighteen inches of water and motorists were making a three mile detour around the river.

The Portage river burst its banks and flooded the farm lands on the river bottoms but no serious damage had been reported.

YOUTH IS KILLED

LANCASTER, O., April 9.—Wesley Seymour, 17, son of Pearl Seymour, of Lancaster, was killed today by a northbound Hooking Valley train near Hooker's Station, five miles north of here. The youth was standing on the tracks with his brother Pearl, 23, when the train rounded a curve. Pearl leaped to safety, but Wesley, apparently transfixed by the approaching train, was knocked beneath the wheels and mangled. The boys were en route to Hooker's Station to seek work.

FALLS TO DEATH

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—Rudyard Tucker, a structural steel worker, was killed today when he fell fifteen stories while working on the new forty-eight story American Insurance Union skyscraper here.

Rudyard was working on the 35th floor when he lost his balance and plunged to the 20th floor.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON LIED AND DRANK TO FORWARD PROHIBITION

NEW YORK, April 9.—William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson tells the story of his part in the campaign which led to the passage of prohibition in a copyrighted article in the May issue of Hearst's International Cosmopolitan Magazine released today.

"In his article Johnson says: 'I have not enough lies for the cause to make Ananias ashamed of himself.'"

That on one occasion he bribed Russian officials to give him secret information, which would aid his work.

That he has drunk "gallons of it" in his campaign against liquor. He denied stories which have been told that he had even taken human life in his campaigning and told the source of those stories.

"I like the taste of liquor," Johnson wrote, "but I have never drunk it except for the reasons (gathering evidence in criminal cases) indicated above."

"I have not had a drink in a dozen years. And yet I would take a drink right now if I thought that it would advance the prohibition cause."

Johnson specifies he is "not engaged in the task of defending either my own conduct or that of the Anti-Saloon League."

"In the abstract," he says, "much could not with ease be justified ethically."

"One of the most difficult lessons for the dries to learn," Johnson writes, discussing the political phases of Prohibition, "was that a man's personal habits as to drink did not necessarily affect his availability as a candidate for public office."

"Many of our most loyal supporters in and out of public office, were men who occasionally took a drink and some of them took it more than occasionally."

He characterized the "West Virginia statehood fight, in 1912" as the turning point of the prohibition struggle. He charged the wets had arranged to pay newspapers in West Virginia, large amounts to publish their propaganda as editorial or reading matter.

Johnson wrote letters to the newspapers asking their rates of "poor news matter" and for "editorials" against prohibition "to be written by myself."

ARGUMENT IS FATAL.
MEDINA, O., April 9.—A dispute over "who could shoot the straightest" resulted in the death here of Ernest Leiblin, 42, and the arrest of Dennis Van, 35, who has been charged with Leiblin's murder. Van, in recounting how Leiblin was shot to death, said they argued over who was the best shot, the dispute finally becoming so heated that he shot Leiblin through the heart.

Said

NEW YORK, April 9.—H. L. Mercury and Herbert Asbury, author of the article "Hatrack," which has led to a belated postoffice order barring the April issue from the mails, although the mailing was completed two weeks ago, today prepared statements for the United Press relative to the wave of protest engulfing Asbury's hometown—Farmington, Mo.

Yesterday the folks of Farmington adopted resolutions against the magazine and promised to take the matter before the next national conference of the Methodist Church.

It was in Farmington that "Hatrack" a woman of considerably doubtful virtue, is said to have lived, and United Press dispatches quoted the citizens as declaring she was now residing in an adjacent town, after having married a second time. Three children by her first husband were said to be in an orphan asylum.

The statements of Mencken and Asbury follow:

By HENRY J. MENCKEN
Written For The United Press
Those worthy Christians of Farmington simply prove Mr. Asbury's case. My suggestion is that they hang all the town evangelists and begin to read the sermon on the Mount.

By HERBERT ASBURY
Written For The United Press
There is nothing in the article on "Hatrack" that is not true, and I am ready to meet any worthy people of the town. Charity and salvation were for the "nice people" and not for those who really needed them. Farmington appears still to be practicing its peculiar brand of charity toward "Hatrack" by announcing to the world where she lives, and that her children are in an orphan asylum.

The time for Farmington to become indignant on "Hatrack's" case was twenty years ago, when the poor creature yearned for decent human companionship and received nothing but scorn and ostracism.

It would be interesting to know what the people of Farmington have done for her during these years. Is she now permitted to belong to a church, and if so, is she relieved there of equity terms with others or is she merely tolerated?

She was the worthiest object of Christian charity, and sympathy that our town ever had within my recollection and it is most unfortunate that the "nice people" of Farmington, many of whom are wealthy, have not been able to keep her family together and her children out of the orphan asylum.

Farmington really wishes to do something for "Hatrack" even at this late day, I shall be glad to contribute according to my means.

Rea would regard it as a necessary duty of every scientist to make the general public understand that the pure science of today is the applied science of tomorrow.

Furthermore, he urged, "It must be emphasized that science has an intellectual and spiritual value as well as an applied value."

Rea is scheduled to enlarge and discuss his views in his presidential address at tonight's session of the academy.

Among the other important discussions announced for the convention is an exhaustive and detailed symposium of parasitic mind and tolerance. The scientists working in collaboration, are scheduled to take part in this discussion.

HEALTH OF WORKING MEN MENACED BY DRY LAW WITNESS SAYS

Labor Federation Official Attacks Prohibition

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The health of four million working men is menaced by prohibition, William S. Roberts, of the American Federation of Labor told the senate prohibition investigation committee today, presenting a laboring plea for beer and light wine.

The man who lives by the sweat of his brow is drinking deleterious spirits which affect his life and health, Roberts said, after announcing himself as personal representative of President William Green of the Federation.

Good beer and light wines would be beneficial Roberts argued. Roberts outlined a 30,000 mile trip across the country which he took with the late Samuel Gompers. "Everywhere there was plenty of distilled liquor but seldom real beer," he said. "We found, homes of the people had been turned into breweries and distilleries turning out dangerous concoctions which would ruin the health of those who drank them to any extent."

MORE mor omre more more more. They all asked us, when is congress to realize that the manufacture and sale of beer would make for true temperance?"

Women were also interested in such questions. "The defenders of the Volstead act apparently prefer to see the people of our country seriously affected by vicious concoctions of liquor rather than to make it a temperance country by legalizing the manufacture of mild beer," Roberts continued. "We are drifting nearer and nearer to becoming a whiskey drinking nation under prohibition."

Roberts outlined the following effects which his organization believes have resulted from prohibition:

"A general disregard of the law among all classes of people, including those who made the law."

"Creation of thousands of moonshiners among both country and city dwellers."

"Creation of an army of bootleggers."

"An amazing increase in the traffic in poisonous and deadly concoctions and drugs."

"Increase in taxes to city, state and national government to amount to one thousand million dollars a year."

"Increase in the cost of living."

"Increase in the cost of living."

"Increase in the cost of living."

EXPLOSION AND FIRE ON RIVER STEAMERS CLAIM HEAVY TOLL

Fifty-Eight Injured After Vessels Wrecked On
Mississippi—Blazing Oil On Water
Thwarts Swimmers

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 9.—From yesterday afternoon until almost daybreak today, the Mississippi River near here was shot with flames, following a series of explosions caused by two ship disasters, the gravest in the history of this port.

Thirty-five men are missing or dead. Fifty-eight were injured and are in hospitals and five vessels have been burned and damaged.

The hours of tragedy began in the Johncke drydock late yesterday when the O. T. Warring was rocked by a series of explosions. Six men are missing from the ship and are believed dead. Forty-three are injured.

Twenty-nine men are missing and believed to have burned to death on the Dutch Tanker Silvanus which drifted down the river from Point A La Hache, after a collision in a night fog with the Standard Oil Tank ship Thomas H. Wheeler. The vessel caught fire after the head-on crash and a fountain of fire was spread on the river. Those who survived were forced to swim under water blanketed with flaming oil.

An exact check of the number of dead and injured in the Silvanus crash cannot be made until the three ships bringing survivors reach New Orleans today.

The Tropical Radio Company, provided the only means of communication with Point A La Hache.

Members of the crew have been filing "All's well" messages to home folks since the collision and the number indicated, according to radio officials, that the casualty list might be greatly reduced when a complete check is possible.

Fifteen Chinese and Scandinavian members of the crew were being treated today for burns and other injuries.

The six missing from the O. T. Warring, are believed to have been hurled overboard and carried down the swift current of the Mississippi to their deaths.

Reports that floating bodies are being taken from the wreckage brought scores of relatives to the river bank.

Three ships were still bringing rescued seamen to New Orleans at dawn, while extra physicians and nurses were caring for the injured at Charity Hospital.

The harbor was dotted with vessel searching for bodies and ambulances are stationed to meet incoming ships in case more survivors are found by the cruising ships.

Of the damage to vessels the Silvanus is the heaviest victim. It is a total loss. The O. T. Warring suffered $100,000 damage, and the British freighter Maun Isle, alongside caught fire and sustained damaged plates from the force of an explosion. Another ship on the starboard side was slightly damaged. The Thomas H. Wheeler is aground and damage is estimated at $200,000.

Captain Weiser, of the Silvanus, was picked up by the American Freighter Tapa Lopa, outbound and sent ashore in a small boat.

The Dutch freighter, freighter, reported by wireless that he had picked up one of the Silvanus.

S. N. Simpson, river pilot of New Orleans, in charge of the Silvanus, is believed drowned.

The Wheeler was bound from Key West to Baton Rouge, while the Silvanus, was out bound from New Orleans for New London.

An explosion occurred first aboard the Silvanus. The crew jumped or were thrown in the river without a chance to lower the lifeboats.

Other vessels made for the burning ship. The Tapa Lopa put out lifeboats which were forced to glide on the edge of the burning sea of oil. Other ships clustered nearby but could not go in close to the Silvanus.

Petrus O'Neal, the second engineer of the Silvanus, told his story of the collision and the harrowing experience with the utmost composure.

"Why be excited?" he asked in mild surprise.

"There was little noise when the ships collided," he began.

"I was in the engine room with the first engineer and the fifth."

"We got a signal to stand by, then to slow, then to stop, then to go full speed ahead. There was no ever impact. We followed the signals."

"We saw flames shooting through the grating overhead. The first engineer went up the iron ladder to see what was the matter. The lights went out. The ship tilted as though she would stand on end. I found the ladder in the dark and reached the deck. I could not see the men who had been below me. The deck was a mass of flames."

"I jumped through them into the water. Suddenly the water was on fire. I swam as hard as I water."

"I swam I swam as hard as I water. I swam up for air almost choking."

"The flaming oil on the water was behind me and the ship was hidden by flames. There was much smoke. I swam 200 perhaps 300 yards. I felt ground under my feet."

"Just as I reached the shore I saw two other engineers from the ship. Both of them were badly burned about the face. They too had ducked under the water, but they had come up too soon."

When John S. Stevenson, popular Vineland, N. J., lawyer was dying, he wrote a series of letters as his heritage for his son, Dick, who is to open one every birthday until he is twenty-one, and the final one after his marriage. Dick is shown holding Letter No. 1, which he will read next September.

INTERPRETING SCIENCE TO GENERAL PUBLIC
SHOULD BE DUTY OHIO SCIENTISTS ARE TOLD

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—Interpreting science to the general public, should be the paramount duty of the scientists of Ohio, declared Paul M. Rea, president of the Ohio Academy of science today, in an interview prior to the opening of the academy's annual convention here.

The importance of this work cannot be over estimated, Rea said in amplifying his views.

"Those of us engaged in the direction of museums see it as such, for we regard our chief task that of helping to bridge the gap between the man engaged in scientific research and the rest of the public."

MIRAGE LURES MAN IN DEATH SHADOW

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—Rescued in the great Salt Lake Desert while pursuing a mirage caused by thirst, Tony Fasone, 30, was being treated in a hospital at Salt Lake City today, according to word received here by his father, Henry Fasone.

The father, who received the news in a newspaper clipping, asked police for help and wired a promise that money would be sent to bring Tony home.

Tony Fasone, was walking from Los Angeles to Columbus, his father said. He became lost in the desert between Gold Hill and Salt Lake City. He was on the verge of collapse and delirious when he found, according to the Salt Lake story.

Thirst had fevered his brain and he imagined he saw a house and a lake near the road. He walked toward the mirage and became lost.

MARIAN TALLEY TO SING IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS Ohio, April 9.—(U.P.)—An Ohio State University society is to present Marian Talley, whose sensation of the current music season, in recital here last month.

Aluma and active members of Alpha Gamma chapter of kappa Alpha Theta hit upon this novel means of raising money instead of resorting to the time honored custom of a rummage sale or something akin thereto. While the alumnae are in active charge of the affair, undergraduate members are co-operating.

Miss Talley will sing here May 26, in Memorial Hall, her only Ohio appearance this season in personal recital.

NOSE WORTH $50,000

CLEVELAND, O., April 9.—A woman's nose is worth $50,000, according to Lillah H. Hill, New Kensington, Pa., nurse, who filed suit for that amount against John McKeeffrey, Leetonia, Ohio, in federal court here today. The plaintiff claims that part of her nose was cut off in an auto accident, February 18, while she was being taken to the McKeeffrey home, by McKeeffrey's daughter and granddaughter.

The Theatre

A new brand of sheik—the intellectual lover—is supplanting the Latin or physical type on the screen, in the opinion of Marion Fairfax, foremost woman motion-picture producer.

The Valentino mold of heart-crusher, as personified by Rudolph himself, and scores of imitators, of Latin or Spanish origin, is gradually being pushed into the realm of the discarded screen heroes, according to the feminine movie-maker.

"Look over the array of male stars, who are in the ascendant today," said Miss Fairfax, in an interview, "and you will find the mental type now dominating."

"Outstanding examples are Lewis Stone, Ronald Colman and John Gilbert."

The screen hero with sheer "sex-appeal" is losing favor with the fans, contends the woman producer.

"It all goes to prove that, after all, women love the same thing—strength," she continued. "And of strength, mental virility is the strongest, because it dominates all other forms."

"Many women worship physical strength in a man. She may fear him, and at times hate him, yet she loves him."

"The girls and women who have been responsible for the popularity of the conventional film sheik love physical strength because of its aesthetic quality, which in the movies we call sex appeal."

"There is, too, a rarer type which loves the man for the sense of strength or rather protection, ner, but in his face is written a firmness and power that carries the conviction of ability to rise above storms and crises.

"He may have a fiery spirit—a spirited temperament belongs as much to the mental lover as the one whose fore-runner goes back to the days when men wooed with clubs."

Friends of William Faversham will be glad to know he has decided to become an American citizen. I say friends because it is given to actors to have friends although not personal acquaintances. Mr. Faversham, who has contributed some of the best stage work in recent years, depicting parts in thoughtful plays, has applied for his first citizenship papers. He came to America from England forty years ago and is recognized as one of America's best offerings to the stage although he has not been a citizen of his adopted country.

XV. The Knee Bend Push Up.

This is a rather well-known exercise which you will probably recognize. If you do, you will know that it is a real one—and if you don't, you'll know it after you do it.

Position: Lying on chest, knees bent, arms bent, with hands resting on floor near chest.

Exercise: Straighten arms against floor, pushing body off floor. The position is almost the same as in the few exercises preceding but the knees are bent. By pushing downward and straightening your arms, you raise the body so that it is supported on your hands and toes. Continue for from ten to twenty-four counts, depending on your strength. There is little danger of overdoing this exercise.

The next exercise, the Double Up, is a little less simple than today's, but it is a lot of fun.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

MARY WAITE shares two rooms with CELIA STEWART, and works as a stenographer and general assistant in the office of

STANLEY BLAKE. Mary has few friends, but Celia goes out frequently in the evening, though she does not tell with whom. Mary finds that Celia and Stanley see each other frequently, although Stanley is married. Mary goes to supper with

PAT HAMILTON, whom she has met before but whose attentions she has refused because he is married, and sees Celia and Stanley at another table. Mrs. Blake learns that Stanley is going around with some girl, and thinks it is Mary. She telephones Mary, threatening to make trouble unless Mary leaves town at once. Celia disappears. Mary sees Hamilton again, and he arranges for her to go to New York and work for a friend of his. Mary goes to work in New York for

MR. CRANDALL, a wealthy old man, and meets his son

WILL CRANDALL, who is very nice to her. She moves into the country with Will on Saturday afternoon, and they are stranded on a back road when the car runs out of gas. Mary goes with Will to spend the week end with his brother and sister-in-law, Jim and Virginia Crandall. Old Mr. Crandall is taken ill, and Will and Jim return to town. Mary goes to the beach with Virginia and there meets Cecilia again. Mary hears from Pat Hamilton, who says that if she will do some stenographic work for him she can cancel her debt to him. She returns to New York. Hamilton persuades her to break her engagement to Will Crandall.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT XLII—A RAY OF LIGHT

MARY felt as if the world's brightness had all been wiped out, because of her own unhappiness. She telephoned Will early the next morning, but was told that he was not at home. She remained in her room all day, expecting him to phone her, but he did not, and her efforts to reach him were all vain.

She told herself that it was her own fault that he was acting so; after her not giving him any reason for saying that she would not marry him, she could not expect him to come to see her. And yet he had insisted that he must see her at once—he had been eager enough then!

She longed, as she so often had, for some woman to whom she could go with her trouble. If only her mother had lived, she told herself, she wouldn't have got into this hopeless muddle. She would never have borrowed money from Pat Hamilton—her thoughts ran on readily after that—if she hadn't had his help, she would never have come to New York and then she would not have met Will Crandall!

That was the way with life—it asked so much of you, if it was going to give you its greatest gifts!

Pat Hamilton came for her at seven o'clock; she was convinced by that time that Will did not intend to come to see her or telephone.

"I'll never see him again," she told herself. "Oh, I'll write him, I'll go to his house and sit on the steps till he comes out—I must see him!"

She was distracted during dinner, hardly heard what Hamilton said to her.

"I'm a very poor companion," she told him. "You might better have asked someone else to dine with you."

"I'd rather have you than anyone else, even when you haven't a word for me," he answered. "Don't be so unhappy, Mary; this is going to come out all right. I got the Crandall house on the phone today, and spoke with Mrs. Crandall."

"Oh, what did she say?" Mary asked eagerly.

"Said that her husband was better," he replied.

"With Will," she said, and she felt that he was better this afternoon than he had been at any other time since his collapse. "So there's hope, you see. Did Will come to see you?"

Mary shook her head. Her eyes filled with tears.

"Oh, well, never mind; he'll come soon," he told her quickly. "Now, your troubles into the back of your mind for a little while; that's the only thing to do. The more you brood over them, the more they'll make you look old and ugly. Keep your prettiness, child; keep it for Will."

Mary made herself smile at that; it seemed curious to her that Pat Hamilton, who wanted her to marry him, telling her how to keep herself pretty for the man she was going to marry instead.

She tried hard to take an interest in the play to which they went after dinner, but her thoughts insisted on wandering. She could not help smiling ruefully when she remembered how she had once thought that she would be happy if she could go to the theater and sit in a box, wear pretty clothes, and have interesting company.

Now she was doing those things, and she meant nothing to her! Would life always be like that, she asked herself. Would what she wanted always come to her too late to have any real meaning, any power to make her happy?

During the first intermission Hamilton went out to the lobby of the theater to smoke, but Mary refused to go with him. She felt too much worn out by emotion to take even a few extra steps. Her only desire at the moment was to sit still—and go on wondering about Will.

It was at almost the end of the interval between the acts when as she looked about the house, she saw a man walking down the aisle. There was something familiar about him. She looked again, and drew back sharply. It was Will!

At that moment a man's hands were laid lightly on her shoulders. She turned quickly, expecting to find Hamilton standing there. To her amazement it was Will's brother Jim.

"Mary," he said softly. "I want to talk with you. Won't you come out to the lobby with me?"

She rose quickly and went with him. She had quite forgotten about Hamilton for the moment. He passed them on his way back to the box, but Mary did not even see him.

"Will's here, isn't he?" she said to Jim Crandall.

"Yes, and he hasn't seen you. I did, though, and I know how he feels about Pat Hamilton. I don't know what he'll do if he knows that you're here with Hamilton. Will's frightfully upset because of what you said to him over the phone last night; he is convinced that you care more for some other man than you do for him. I don't think so—I've seen the expression in your eyes when you looked at him."

A man's hands were laid lightly on her shoulders.

"Oh, I do love him more than anyone else," Mary exclaimed.

"And yet you're breaking his heart—and your own, aren't you?" Jim replied. "You mustn't do this, Mary. Now, can't you tell me all about it, please?"

She hesitated for a moment, studying his face.

"Yes," she said at last. "I can. Last night Pat Hamilton told me that I was killing my father because he was so upset over my being engaged to Will. Mr. Hamilton said that your father just couldn't stand it, and that was why he's so ill."

"I couldn't bear that I knew that Will would never be really happy with me if he thought that I had been the cause of his father's death stood between us. So I told him over the phone that I couldn't marry him just now—I thought we'd wait till your father got better."

"Pat Hamilton knows nothing about it!" Jim exclaimed angrily. "Dad wasn't half so upset as mother was; it was her fretting at him that made him worse. He knows you pretty well from your working for him, and I think he's convinced that you'd make Will a good wife."

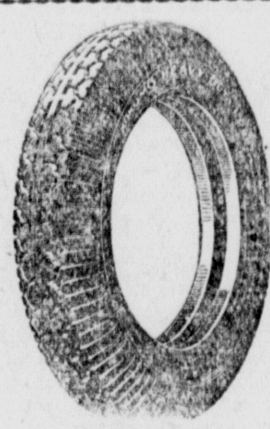

"Let me go down to Will and send him to you here, will you? Then you and he can straighten this thing out. He's desperate—he good to him, Mary!"

"I'll go," she said.

"I'll go," she said.

"I'll go," she said.

HEATON-ANDERSON AT FRIENDS CHURCH

In a setting of ferns, palms, southern smilax, pink, white and yellow snapdragons and in the soft light of candles, the marriage of Miss Leona Ruth Heaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heaton and Mr. Carlton D. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Anderson, was solemnized at Friends Church, Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

White bows marked the guest pews, as an effective note in the decorations. Potted greenery was combined with strands of waxy smilax on the altar, with tall standards of graceful snapdragons. Two candleabra were placed on either side of the altar which added to the effect.

Marking the beginning of the ceremony, Miss Helen Hurley, sang "I Love You Truly," and "O Promise Me," accompanied by Mrs. Mary Imman, who blended into the Lohengrin wedding march. Miss Hurley wore a frock of blue with shoulder bouquet of sweet peas in variegated colors and Mrs. Imman wore green silk with a wrist bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Bridal party marched to the altar down the two aisles, Miss Mary Jones, maid of honor leading the bride's procession. She wore lavender tulle, fashioned Colonial style with quaint fichu and ruffles. She carried an arm bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses. Her slippers were of silver. Master "Junior" Heaton, ring bearer, walked next. He was dressed in a black velvet suit and carried the ring concealed in a basket of rose petals.

The bride entered with her father. Her gown was of georgette, beaded in rhinestones and made along straight, girlish lines, with side godets. Her veil of tulle was caught with a band of orange blossoms and fell to the floor. White slippers completed her accessories and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies, made into three parts.

The bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Ernest Randall, and the officiating clergyman, the Rev. Russell Burkett, came down the aisle and met the bride and her attendants at the altar. The single ring ceremony was performed.

Reception at the Heaton home on S. Detroit St., followed the ceremony. Southern smilax, pink and white roses decorated the rooms of the Heaton home. Fifty guests were received by the bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Heaton and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Anderson. Mrs. Heaton wore a gown of ashes of roses shade with a corsage of pink sweet peas. Mrs. Anderson wore grey with a shoulder bouquet of lavender sweet peas.

The bride's table was centered with a pink and white wedding cake with bowls of pink roses at either end. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. William Jordan, Lima, O.; Miss Mary Jones, Mr. Ernest Randall, Miss Lucille Legg, Mr. Carl Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williams, Mrs. Mary Imman, Miss Mildred Emery.

A three-course dinner was served, other guests being seated at quartet tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left Thursday night for Cleveland and Lima where they will spend the honeymoon. Mrs. Anderson's traveling outfit was of grey hat, coat and footwear with a blue frock and scarf.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are graduates of the Class of 1923, Central High School. Mr. Anderson is employed as salesman for the Lang Chevrolet Agency. Mrs. Anderson has been honored with a number of pre-nuptial parties.

COLVIN-HECKER MARRIAGE OF INTEREST.

Greene County relatives were in attendance when Miss Amy Frances Colvin, younger daughter of Mrs. Grace P. Colvin, Delaware, O., became the bride of Mr. Arthur William Hecker, Cleveland, at William Street Church, Delaware, Tuesday evening.

The wedding was solemnized with handsome dignity. Just before the entrance of the bridal party, Mr. John C. Whitcomb, Delaware, at the organ played "At Dawning," blending into the Lohengrin march. The officiating ministers with the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. C. Carver Rople, Cleveland, entered from the vestry and awaited the bride and her attendants at the altar. Ushers were fraternity brothers of the groom at Cornell University, who led the bridal procession.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Helen Blair, Ruth Stephens and Ruth Thomson, Delaware and Miss Jane Pontius, Dayton. They all wore georgette gowns with beaded trimmings, silver slippers and carried arm bouquets, contrasting with the tints of their gowns.

The bride entered alone and was an exquisite picture in her bridal gown of white satin, fashioned bouffant style with inserts of chantilly lace and ribbon rosettes. The long court train was of georgette and satin and the tulle veil, fashioned cap fashioned with pearls and rhinestones, fell to the end of the train. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley and orchids. She was joined at the altar by her mother who gave her in marriage. Mrs. Colvin wore blue georgette with a corsage of yellow roses and orchids.

The single ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edwin W. Thornton, Cincinnati, cousin of the bride, assisted by his pastor, the Rev. F. Wade Smith.

Informal reception at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bryant, followed. Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Hecker left by motor for an extended trip through the South.

The bride, who attended Ohio Wesleyan University, is a member of Gamma Phi sorority and is well known locally. The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hecker, Cleveland. WHY STUDY HISTORY?

THE time is coming--and the sooner the better--when the small boy's plaintive "aw, what's the use o' studying all this stuff?" will not arouse a vague query of what, indeed, is the use, in the mind of his elders. In the case of history, at least, results will be extremely practical, as well as merely disciplining the mind--and keeping the same boy out of mischief during certain hours of the day.

Since history was first recorded, nations have risen and fallen. They have risen when they were observed certain laws of growth, and they have fallen when they have disregarded them. Over and over again, in dizzy succession, wars have appeared, provoked by the same causes, and preceded by the same succession of events. In spite of tremendous contributions to knowledge that are constantly being made, history continues placidly and irresistibly to repeat itself, with the same successes and the same mistakes.

There must be certain elements of worth in these historical movements or they would not be recurring again and again. There must be danger signals on the paths that lead to disaster. The statesman must be quick to recognize both in a careful study of history, and hasten to apply them to the problems of the day in an eminently practical way. Then there will be no question as to why history is studied.

THE BRAIN IS SUPREME

REMEMBER how on Fourth of July night you used to take a little fireworks stick called a sparkler, and whirl it about? You wove circles, figure eights, all sorts of fantastic patterns in the air. And at that time you didn't realize that the figures you were seeing didn't exist at all. It was your eyes that were deceiving you.

Try the same experiment any time with a match or a glowing cigar. You can't trust your eyes. That's why so many of us need glasses.

You can't trust your nose, either. The sweetish, almond smell may come from deadly cyanide of potassium. Many of the poison gases in the World War had a not unpleasant smell--at first.

Your ears are just as unreliable. Just try to whistle a tune in someone's presence. Unless you are a phenomenon, you'll whistle mostly wrong notes, off key. Your whistler's all right. It's your ear that's playing a trick on you.

Your taste, allied to smell, is equally deceptive. The sense of touch is probably the most reliable of all, but it is a poor thing at best. How would you like to sit down blindfolded among enemies and agree to eat whatever you might be permitted to feel of?

Then, if the five senses are such poor servants, how is it we get along so well with their aid? It is because the brain directing them is more perfect than any one sense. When the eyes fail, the brain orders the touch-sense and the hearing-sense to help out.

No life, no home, no business, can be successfully carried on without a central mind more capable than any of the subordinates. Just as your senses, co-operating, achieve what no single one could do, so in your every activity you will find most success if you, to, learn to co-operate. Know when to subordinate yourself, and be not afraid when it comes your time to command.

MIGRATORY MAN

IMAGINE a man on Mars looking at Earth through an enormous telescope--how strange it would seem to him if he never saw any of the inhabitants on this globe move out of their own tiny locality? He would see at the same time the whole curve of this planet; and the many marvelous things, and the different people scattered over it; he might yearn to cross the vast interstellar spaces and see those things and meet those people face to face, and he would envy them their opportunity that would be denied him. But if the Earth-dwellers never pay any attention to the other things that are to be found around their planet; and if they never move out of their own vicinity--how ridiculous that would appear to be! When there is so much to see over Earth's rim.

This great globe hurtling through eternal space belongs to man. It is far more to man than just a place to live. One of the greatest opportunities it affords its human children is to learn all about the amazing variety of things existing on its surface. What is beyond the horizon? Today--during the routine course of daily events--elsewhere there are beyond the horizon many strange sights, odd folks and scenes remarkable for their beauty and grandeur. What is the average man's perspective of all these things most worth while?

Should man be content to attach himself to one little spot on this vast sphere and shut his eyes and ears to all that is beyond that encircling horizon which is his voluntary prison? Are men and women with the wander-lust to be rebuked? On the contrary, what an ignorant, narrow-minded bigoted and provincial world this would be if man were not migratory both by instinct and by choice.

AMERICAN WORKMEN AN EXAMPLE

CERTAIN English trades agitators have urged the adoption of Soviet ideas as the salvation of the English laborer. With a far clearer and more rational vision, Premier Baldwin urges the trades unions to come to America and study labor conditions. Labor in Russia is at the absolute bottom of the social, financial, moral and political scale--that is, all labor but the organized military oligarchy. Premier Baldwin knows this fact, and to him Russia is a terrible model. But he sees in America the best paid, the most prosperous, the most independent, the best-living workman in the history of the world. He would have his countrymen take lessons from the best, instead of the worst.

NOW THEN, ALL TOGETHER!

1906-Twenty Years Ago-1926

With spring weather here, Xenians are looking forward to the coming of natural gas. Work on the main line has been resumed, and pipes are nearing Xenia.

The C. H. and D. freight office will soon undergo quite a change and an enlargement. Mr. William Graser, who has been employed at the depot restaurant for some time as night clerk, has resigned to become a drummer in a circus.

Mr. T. Dales Kyle, assistant cashier of the Citizens National Bank, has disposed of his residence on N. Galloway St. to Mrs. E. H. Carrthers, of Philadelphia.

The Conwell hardware store and carriage emporium is a scene of busy activity getting ready for the big opening these sandwiches one hard-boiled egg, and a wedge of raisin pie.

Stuffed White Potatoes: Pare large white potatoes. Rub the exteriors with bacon fat or beef drippings (this gives a good crust) and bake till done through, on a pan containing a little butter. When baked cut in half, scoop out some of the interior of each half, add a little canned deviled ham, or a little fried and chopped bacon--or any desired combination--then stuff the halves with the mixture. Press the potato together again and wrap in wax paper. Every bit of the potato may thus be eaten, without the bother of scooping out the meaty part from skins. With one large stuffed potato pack two sliced meat sandwiches, a couple of pieces of lettuce, and either cake and fruit, or a fruit pie.

THE CARRIED LUNCH

A Column Friend, who signs herself, "Just a Reader of the Paper," has written to ask for "different" sandwiches and dishes for a carried lunch, for an adult. The child's carried school lunch should contain only simple food--simple sandwiches, a baked custard, fruit and simple cakes. But a grown person's lunchbox may be filled from a far wider choice of dishes. Try some of the following:

Beef Loaf: One pound of lean beef chopped, one egg well beaten, two soda crackers rolled, butter size of a walnut, one-half cup of sweet, cold milk, and salt and pepper to season well. Mix all well together and form into a loaf. Bake one hour in a moderate oven with a little water in the bottom of the loaf. A generous slice of this makes a nourishing lunch-box dish. It could be served hot for dinner the previous evening, and a slice of the cold loaf used for the lunchbox. With it, a piece of celery, two jelly sandwiches (wholewheat bread, and butter) and an apple, perhaps a couple of cookies, would make a well-balanced lunch.

Macaroni-Chesse Sandwiches: Simply put cold cooked macaroni baked with chesse, through your food chopper, mash to a paste, season with salt and pepper, and spread on slices of buttered bread. (The Baked Macaroni and Chesse could be served hot for dinner one day, and the left-over in the lunch-box the following day.) To make a well-balanced meal, pack with

BY J. V. JAY

The Goofer and Dad are doing a little indoor practice. Sort of making sure that the motus haven't got into the clubs or the mice haven't dined too well on catgut strings. They are discussing the matter of handicaps when Aunt Sophia announces that the girls have gone to the country club with their golf bags. That may not interest Dad so much, but for the Goofer any direction that Mitzi takes immediately becomes desirable. Dad, looking at Aunt Sophia's new dress of navy blue with its embroidered sleeves and tab collar, thinks he'll stay home. The neckline comes to a V--a motif that is carried out on the skirt by gogets.

It would be more than the Goofer's luck to find Mitzi alone anywhere. Here they are--Polly, Adelaide and Mitzi having tea and a deep earnest conversation. It happens that they are talking about their new sport frocks. Polly wears the horizontal striped sweater with a flannel sports skirt. Adelaide wears a two-piece dress with a colored jumper, giving a sweater effect. Mitzi wears a two-piece dress with a jacket, the dress is sleeveless. The jacket is banded in the same material as the dress. Sports wear seems to be such sport to wear that the game is of small moment--or so the outcast Goofer feels.

along the Little Miami River, which flows along its south edge. When the village was laid out in 1833 there were a few settlers already on the site. Town also boasted one of the largest mills in this section of the state then. It was this fact that induced the owners to plat a village about the mill. A. G. Kiler, a carpenter, was persuaded to locate there and he actually built fourteen houses that year.

Clifton became a full-fledged village after a few years, due in large part to its beautiful river location and the hope that a proposed new railroad between Springfield and Xenia would pass through the town. Instead, Yellow Springs was favored with the road.

Among residents of the village in its early days were John Knox, General Benjamin Whiteman, Baker, Braley, Knott, Porter, Gibson, Stevenson, Luce and Kemp. Village was incorporated in 1855 but little benefit was derived from the incorporation. Many of the enterprising citizens moved to Yellow Springs as soon as the railroad went through there in the middle of the '40's and the once promising town was soon only a ghost of its former self.

THE ROUNDED LIFE

When you have done with your business and ended your battle for gain.

When you have come to your glory and gathered the price of your pain.

What have you captured that's lasting more than the joy of your own.

The love of your wife and your children, the love of the friends you have known?

Give heed to the life you are building, for in truth 'tis a life that you build;

Is it a temple of gladness, with pictures and memories filled,

Or is it a sepulchre ghastly, a tomb that is silent and cold,

With nothing to warm you or cheer you but columns of silver and gold?

You were born to be strong, to be happy, to laugh and to sing through the years;

You were born to know life in its fullness, with all of its heartaches and tears;

You were born to know roses and blossoms and the numberless pleasures of earth;

So stunt not your life as the miser, who reckons in money his worth.

For when, age shall descend with its shadows and the end of the battle is seen,

You will find the brave heart and the gentle as rich as the richest has been.

For his life shall be blended with beauty, he shall treasure of memory own,

While the slave to his millions of dollars shall sit at his desk all alone.

Take time for the pleasure of living, take time to be friendly and kind;

Be more than a maker of money, grow richer in heart and in mind;

Be a glorious comrade and neighbor, know the meaning of laughter and tears;

Live bravely and gladly and fully, and you will not have wasted the years.

The Power of the Mind

The wisest man now living will never know but a portion of the mystery of the mind.

What a vital organ it is! Life is a blank without its perfect health. How it shapes all the ways and means of human activity.

There seems to be no limit to what the mind may achieve.

What a spectacle when a strong man stands forth with a great idea or an unusual purpose and asserts the power of his mind. Who can withstand a determined mind that is working for a good beyond the little aims of self?

Hearsey, an article in a paper, or simply something merely imagined, may color and cloud the mind so that it affects the entire working of the bodily machine. It is possible for the man with little faith to pound away at the man of great faith until his faith is undermined.

How far a little kindness or encouragement goes!

There is nothing more cruel than to pour fresh discouragement upon the one already discouraged. I have a friend who could not sleep all night because of something heard during the evening that savored of bad news. Later there were those who disabused the mind of my friend, encouraged him and proved to him that what he had heard was without foundation.

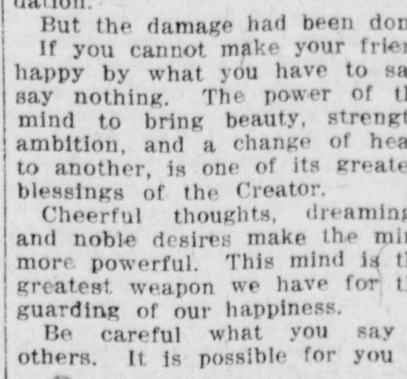

But the damage had been done. If you cannot make your friend happy by what you have to say, say nothing. The power of the mind to bring beauty, strength, ambition, and a change of heart to another, is one of its greatest blessings of the Creator.

Cheerful thoughts, dreamings, and noble desires make the mind more powerful. This mind is the greatest weapon we have for the guarding of our happiness.

Be careful what you say to others. It is possible for you to guide many a life by the strength of your faith and the courage of your convictions, and to uphold a faltering spirit that has been poisoned by the whisperings of some stammered person.

Always stand your ground and remember that there is no proof that the other fellow has a more powerful mind than you have. Nothing is powerful that doesn't get that way through use.

Telephone Birthday Is Being Celebrated Friday

Xenia Got Telephone Five Years After Its Invention
—Late L. H. Whiteman Was Pioneer—Early Newspaper Story Tells of Start

Forty-five years ago—just five years after its invention—the telephone came to Xenia.

From a beginning that time has cloaked in semi-obscure, the story of the telephone in Xenia is one of continuous progress, of ever increasing popularity and of steady substantial growth. From one lonely, almost useless instrument back in those days of 1881, has sprung more than 2,400 telephones which bind Xenia together in a communicating system that extends to nearly every home.

It was on March 10, 1876, when the first complete sentence was transmitted over the telephone by its inventor, Alexander Graham Bell. The nation wondered a bit and there was some mild interest, but most of the attention drawn by the baby invention was based on ridicule.

Five years later the telephone reached Xenia. It was still in the swaddling clothes of infancy, still regarded in many quarters as a toy or plaything and only a few months away from pulpit denunciation. Yet many people hailed it as the wonder of the age, and were beginning to appreciate its eventual possibilities. Among these were the men behind the venture that established the first Xenia exchange.

Let us go back over that period of forty-five years and revive the incidents of those days of telephone pioneering—incidents which today would be laughable, but in those days were marvelous happenings, which now are taken as a matter of course.

Starting a telephone exchange in 1881 meant real pioneering in a field that was nearly as virgin as America in the days of Christopher Columbus. There were no beaten paths to follow, no experts to give advice and assistance. Subscribers had to be obtained and to get them it was necessary to convince them of the worth of the telephone. Then poles had to be placed and wire strung and the instrument connected with the central office. It was all one operation to the early telephone man, who did all the work required, even to digging the pole holes and getting the subscriber.

As stated before, the early days of Xenia's telephone system are more or less obscured as the men in charge then were so busy fighting for their business lives that accurate records were not kept for posterity. In fact it some times appears that the telephone system here, like Topsy, "just grew." The first actual subscriber was the law firm of Little and Shearer and it was in that office that the first instrument was installed.

The idea of a local telephone system for Xenia came up in 1880. Dayton and other nearby towns had telephone systems in operation and it was felt that Xenia should pace with the progress of its neighbors. Late in 1880 work was begun and in April, 1881, the first Xenia telephone exchange was opened. It went under the name of the Xenia Telephone Company.

At that time the telephone business in Xenia was more or less an experiment. In fact, the business office and the switchboard were located in one room and then there was plenty of space for expansion. This was located over what was then the Fleming Hardware store.

The first switchboard was what is known in telephone circles as a "Jones board" and was made in Cincinnati. It had a capacity of fifty lines and was regarded as a model of those days. This board and the telephone exchange in general was an object of great curiosity to Xenia people, who deemed it a great privilege to visit the office, watch connections made and then go home and marvel over the manner in which subscribers were connected.

Telephone rates in those days were not arranged as now. The official rate for business subscribers was $3.50 and for residence it was one dollar per month. However, there was a catch in the rate since unless subscribers furnished their own bell, the telephone company furnished the bell and then charged the subscriber an extra dollar each month. Very few subscribers furnished the bell.

As an example of the way Xenia people felt about the telephone, the following clipping taken from the Xenia Gazette of April 15, 1881, is enlightening:

"The Xenia Telephone Exchange is a fixed fact. The office has been opened over Fleming's Hardware store, a number of wires are now in connection, an operator constantly in attendance, and the enterprise is in successful operation. Three or four men are now busily engaged in putting up the wires. The longest lines will be those reaching the Orphan's Home and the Rope Walk. Mr. Whiteman, the superintendent, thinks he will have at least six first class business places in connection as soon as he can put up the poles and wires.

"The depots, banks, and principal physicians' offices will be in the connection. The advantage that this enterprise will be to the business community is almost incalculable. The time is not far distant when every principal residence will also be in the connection, so that when an article is wanted at the grocery or other store, it will be ordered by telephone. And as the money can't be sent by telephone what a good excuse there will be for saying: 'Charge it.' In this way the price of the telephone can soon be saved."

"The following is a partial list of those who have given orders to be 'put in connection': both depots, both banks; Doctors Moore and Jones, Brundage, McClung, Gallows and Dice; Attorneys Darlington, Munger, Little and Shearer, Alexander and Spencer, Judge Hawes at courthouse; Coal dealers, Smart, Thornhill, Heston and Fleming; Grocers, Dean and Hopkins; both firms of undertakers; Drugist Fleming; Liverymen, Kyle and Dowling; M. C. Allison's office; Park restaurant; E. N. Forsythe's lumber yard; Dr. Jones' residence and Charles Darlington's residence."

Thus was the coming of the telephone heralded in the newspaper of that day.

Ideas that seem strange now were often worked to advantage by the early telephone employees. One instance of this is the planting of trees to serve as poles for the wire. Present-day telephony is more hindered by trees than aided since trees in the vicinity of open wire of cable are likely to do great damage during a wind storm.

The first manager of the telephone company in Xenia was L. H. Whiteman, since deceased. He was the moving spirit behind the movement that brought the telephone to Xenia. The first operator was Jacob Shambaugh, who has also died. In the first days of the telephone here boys instead of girls served as operators.

The first girl operator in Xenia was Mary Anderson. She is now Mrs. Harry Sparks, of Summerdale, Alabama. The second girl operator was Miss Elizabeth Kyle who is still living in Xenia, her home being at 50 Hiving St.

Early linemen were Harry Clark, who lives at 105 W. Main St., Xenia, and H. L. Karch, now living on Union St.

Differing from many Ohio cities and towns, Xenia quickly established communication with the outside world, not being satisfied to possess merely a home exchange. As early as 1882 toll lines extended from Xenia to Dayton, Springfield and Lebanon.

The first big forward step taken by the company occurred in 1884 when the Xenia Telephone Company consolidated under the name of the Miami Telephone Company. This company continued in existence until October, 1901, when it was purchased by the Central Union Telephone Company. This marked the second big step in Xenia's telephone history. At the time the local company was purchased by the Central Union, it had 350 users. In 1902 this number had been increased to 500. In 1910 there were 1,000 telephone users. Since that time the growth of the telephone has been steady.

The first aerial cable to be erected in Xenia was in 1893, shortly after its use became practicable. The first underground cable was laid in 1905.

The longest line out of Xenia in 1881 was to the Benner Greenhouse which was about a mile outside the city limits on the New Burlington pike. Mr. Bonner was, therefore, the first rural telephone subscriber in Greene County.

Fifty years since the invention of the telephone—forty-five since it came to Xenia! Its past development is known. Its future—who can tell?

BANQUET FOR EARLY SUBSCRIBERS WILL FEATURE OCCASION

Speakers Will Recall Start Of Phone Company Here

In celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the telephone and the forty-fifth year of its use in Xenia, more than a half hundred early telephone users, early telephone employees, present telephone workers, city officials and representatives of various local civic organizations will gather at a banquet and reminiscence meeting in the dining room of the Elks' Club Friday night.

It was fifty years ago last month that the first complete sentence was transmitted over telephone wires and it is because of this and the fact that the first Xenia telephone exchange was established in April 1881, that the date of April 9 was selected for the Xenia celebration. Similar observances are being held in twenty-eight other of the larger exchanges operated by The Ohio Bell Telephone Company while a number of others are being held in places operated by independent companies.

The Xenia exchange, while not the oldest in the state, ranks as one of the very first. Dayton which had a telephone in 1878, two years after its invention, is the oldest exchange in Ohio Bell territory.

The banquet, which is planned to begin at 6 Friday evening, will be followed by short talks by early telephone employees and will be confined to reminiscences of the first days.

Among the early telephone workers, who will be present, is Miss Elizabeth Kyle, one of the earliest living woman operators of Xenia telephone history, having been the second employed here. George Little, fourth manager of the company is another, who will be present and make a talk.

W. G. Barry, general commercial superintendent of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company, with headquarters in Cleveland, A. F. Hardman, assistant to the general manager, also of Cleveland, W. C. Newton, southern division commercial superintendent, of Columbus, L. J. House, special agent of the commercial superintendent, Columbus, Harry E. Allen, district manager of Dayton, are among officials of the Ohio Bell, who will attend. Mr. Barry is expected to make the principal talk from the company stand point.

A Kettle That Holds 5000 Gallons

When Lydia E. Pinkham first began to make her Vegetable Compound she used her largest kettle on the kitchen stove. Today, the Vegetable Compound is made in great steel tanks, lined with glass. Each tank holds 5,000 gallons. To keep pace with the demand for this famous medicine, a tankful is made every two days.

Throughout the entire process of manufacture the utmost care is taken. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is accurately made under sanitary conditions. Public inspection of the Laboratories at Lynn, Mass., is constantly invited.

"Not Possible To Classify" By Mack Sauer

USED CAR WEEK

The other day I bought a car in which I hoped to travel far. My neighbor's car was old and frayed and of the first bunch ever made, while mine had run but two short years and had the latest horn and gears.

But when my neighbors saw my bus, they sure put up an awful fuss. My brother Jim came from afar and said: "Gee, what a splendid car. And see the tires it has, by jing! the spotlight, horn and everything." He said my car sure took his eye and that I had made a splendid buy.

And then another fellow came, whose line was just about the same. Said he: "You got a bargain, Bill, and when I buy a car I will look up the man who sold you this and know that I won't go amiss."

I have a soft-upholstered seat with rubber carpet at my feet. I've got tubes and dandy brakes and springs that easy riding makes. And I appreciate all these when I go riding where I please.

My car is made of finest steel and will not run down at the heel; for it's only loudest praise and hope to use it many days. They said it was a good used car but I have found it better far than some new cars that I have seen that wasted tires and gasoline.

Oh, I am proud of my used bus and it brings lots of joy to us. I drive it now wherever I like, on city streets or country pike. I shift my clutch from low to high, I pick a cinder from my eye, to other cars I say "Goodbye" as down the road I hike.

Sporty young dandies who have been driving about with pictures of bathing beauties pasted on their windshields may or may not be giving their kind and undivided attention to the manipulating of their cars, but they do have something to look forward to. Buy a used car tomorrow and you'll have days of pleasure ahead to look forward to.

SCHLESINGER WILL ADDRESS AUTO CLUB MEETING SATURDAY

State Highway Director George F. Schlesinger, Columbus, former Xenian, will deliver the keynote address at the annual banquet meeting of the board of directors of the Greene County Automobile Club at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night at the club.

Program for the meeting is the most pretentious in the history of the organization as a number of prominent officials of the Ohio State Automobile Association and individual clubs over the state have accepted invitations to be present.

New board of directors is expected to announce results of election of officers for the ensuing year at the meeting.

Present officers of the club are George Little, president; N. N. Hunter, vice-president; A. E. Faulner, treasurer and Oliver Belden, secretary.

Among prominent auto club officers expected to be present are Fred Caley, of the Cleveland Auto Club; Charles James, Columbus, secretary of the Ohio State and American Automobile Associations; Chalmers R. Wilson, Columbus, Ohio commissioner of motor vehicles; the Ackerman brothers, of the Dayton Auto Club and representatives from the Washington C. H. organization.

Banquet will be followed by short talks and the principal address by Director Schlesinger.

EXTRA JURYMEN ARE DRAWN FROM WHEEL

Six names have been drawn from the jury wheel by Clerk of Courts Harvey Elam to fill out places on the regular petit jury for the remainder of the present term of Common Pleas Court, made vacant by reason of several persons being excused from jury service for various reasons. They are as follows:

Frank Doster, Silvercreek Twp.; Ralph H. Glass, Silvercreek, Twp.; Wilson Davis, Xenia; Rachel Creswell, Cedarville Twp.; George Bradley, Xenia, and Kate Gibbs, Miami Twp.

BUSINESS LEADERS OF BUREAU TO MEET

Lead Farm Bureau leaders have received notice of a conference of business representatives of the organization in this section to be held at Dayton on April 16. The meeting is the third of a series of monthly conferences which are being held by leaders over the state to attempt to spread information on the business side of the organization and methods of offering more efficient service to farmers of the state.

The program announced for the coming conference will deal particularly with livestock.

Prof. C. W. Hammans of the Ohio State University will conduct discussions of methods of hooking up farm production practices to marketing, and F. G. Ketter, of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, will tell of the program of co-operative marketing now going forward. Further study will also be given to the methods of handling office records and accounts.

PLAN ANNUAL MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST IN SCHOOLS OF COUNTY

Music Memory Contest in Greene County schools was decided on by music teachers who met in the office of H. C. Aultman, county superintendent, Wednesday afternoon.

Organization of a permanent county orchestra and band, was perfected at the meeting. W. C. Sayre, Beaver Creek, will be director of the county musical organization as well as heading instructors for the next year.

Uniform method of teachers and uniform ability among pupils will be one of the requirements laid down by the local body. System of credit in high schools and grades for music work properly accomplished has been worked out.

Music instructors in attendance were: W. C. Sayre, Alpha; Anna Marie Lindsey, Jamestown and Xenia; Mrs. Mildred Foster, Cedarville; Josephine Armstrong, Ross Twp.; Harry Smith, Osborn; Clara Hurst, Yellow Springs, and Elizabeth Ankeney, Beaver Creek.

Clarence Huston represented Sugar Creek Township on the jury trying the Schneider-Cornelius damage suit in Xenia this week.

Ruth Sackett, of the Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, is spending a few days with her father, mother and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Sackett and Richard Sackett.

There is only one way to build a truly new day car. That's to design it from the ground up to meet and master the certain specific needs and conditions that this new day of congested traffic has brought.
